Candidates Come Out Fighting In Aggressive, Personal Debate

Senator Says President Should Lead and Act on Civil Rights, Vice President Cites G.O.P. Platform.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 — The second act of the "Great Debate" between Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Senator John F. Kennedy presented the major issues of the presidential campaign sharply and concisely last night.

In contrast with his appearance in the first nation-wide television confrontation last week, Nixon, in defending the Eisenhower record and telling how he would build on it, was as aggressive as his Democratic rival last night.

Kennedy, showing the same self-confidence previously displayed, vigorously pursued his general attack on the Republican Administration and on Nixon in particular for what he called failures in the domestic and international fields.

Indulge in Personalities.

Both indulged in personalities, challenging the accuracy of remarks. Both obviously had diligently applied themselves to their homework and had ready answers for questions about their records and their programs if elected.

Kennedy agreed with Nixon that the next President should not go to a summit conference with Russian Premier Khrushchev unless there had been adequate preparation at the diplomatic level to give reasonable certainty of success.

Kennedy added, however, that the United States must build up its military and economic strength for a "test of nerve and will" with the Soviet.

He repeated a campaign-speech warning that "a most serious crisis" would probably occur soon over Berlin and asserted it was imperative for the next President to send a message to Congress to increase our military power.

Charges Distortion.

The Democratic candidate defended his remarks, which he claimed Nixon and others had distorted, that the United States in an attempt to save the Paris summit conference might have apologized or expressed regrets for the U-2 reconnaissance flight over Russian territory. He cited several instances when the United States and Soviet Russia had expressed regrets about

5 HURT AS STOCK CAR PLUNGES OFF TRACK, INTO PITS

Driver Not Injured—Nearly Hits Judges' Stand at St. Charles Speedway.

Five men were injured last night when a stock car went out of control in the main race of the night at the St. Charles Speedway and plunged into the pits.

Four of the injured were working in the pits. The fifth, Roy Mollering of St. Charles, operates a concession stand at the track.

The driver of the racing car, Charles Booten of Alton, escaped injury. He told track officials his steering mechanism came loose as he rounded a curve at the north end of the oval track and started into a straightaway.

Nearly Hit Judges' Stand.

The home-made car, powered by a modified Buick motor, barely missed the judges' stand located beside the straightaway. It shot behind the stand, struck a wrecker and another racing car parked there, hit the five men in the pit area and came to a stop.

Injured in addition to Mollering, were John R. Trolliet, 52, 946 Victoria avenue, Glendale, a postal employe, broken leg and internal injuries; Arthur L. Lewis, 30, 3416 North Eighteenth street, a truck driver, head injury; Carl Brewner, 55, 6133 Jefferson avenue, Berkeley, a machinist, foot and head injuries, and Walter H. Malkenbur, 21, 3916A North Twentieth street, foot and head injuries. Mollering, 44 years old, suffered a broken leg.

All were taken to St. Joseph Hospital in St. Charles.

The accident was seen by about 1600 spectators. None of the audience was endangered.

Booten was in the thirty-ninth lap of a 75-lap race and was competing against 20 other drivers.

Nixon Uncompromising — Both Men Differed Sharply Over Most Questions.

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8—Both presidential candidates came out fighting last night in the second of four scheduled "great debates" carried across the nation by television and radio.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Senator John F. Kennedy disagreed sharply on almost every question raised, accused each other of distortion and held each other personally responsible for the shortcomings of their parties.

Nixon, whom many observers found haggard and defensive in the first encounter a week ago last Monday, was aggressive and uncompromising last night. His first words, in answer to the first question, were, "First of all, I don't agree."

Instead of agreeing with Kennedy on goals, as he had last week, Nixon emphasized their disagreements, said he wanted to "nail a few of these distortions" and promised to correct Kennedy "every time he misstates the case."

The Vice President used pancake make-up to hide his heavy

KENNEDY, NIXON FAST TALKERS: 185 WORDS A MINUTE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP)—Those who listened to the second of the "great debates" last night had to absorb nearly 185 words a minute. The average public speaker talks at the rate of about 125 words a minute.

A rough word count for the hour-long discussion between Senator John F. Kennedy and Vice President Richard M. Nixon showed a little more than 11,000 words spoken in 60 minutes.

By that count, the two men came out almost even, with Kennedy less than 200 words ahead. The rough count showed more than 4900 words for Kennedy and more than 4700 for Nixon, with another 1300-plus for questions and the opening and closing remarks of the moderator.

UNEMPLOYMENT DROP INDICATED FOR SEPTEMBER, MAY HIT 400,000

Early Auto Changeover, Number of School Students Among Causes — 3,400,000 Total Predicted.

© New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 — The official monthly estimate of unemployment is expected to show that the number of unemployed workers declined more than usual in September.

The Department of Labor will not release the estimates until Monday morning but, politics being politics, it was inevitable that there would be anticipatory speculation.

A source who has been right before estimated that Monday's report would show 3,400,000 unemployed in September, compared to 3,800,000 in August.

Unemployment almost always declines in July, August, September and October, even in recession years. It has dropped in 11 of the 13 post-war Septembers, mostly in the range of 150,000 to 250,000. If the drop were greater than this, the seasonally adjusted percentage rate of unemployment would also be reduced. Assuming a 400,000 drop in unemployment this time, it is estimated that the rate would drop to 5.4 per cent, from 5.9 per cent in August.

Two Special Factors.

There were two special factors working to reduce unemployment in September this year. One was the unusual increase in unemployment last June, when schools let out an unusually large number of summer job-seekers. The other was the early changeover to 1961 models in the automobile industry.

The school factor tends to reduce both unemployment and employment in September. The students who found summer jobs quit them and go back to the books, and students who did not find summer jobs stop looking, that is, they stop being "unemployed." The special factor this year is that there was a greater-than-usual outpouring of students last June, making it likely that there would be a greater-than-usual September movement back to school.

By scheduling the auto model changeover a month earlier than usual, the auto industry's changeover layoffs occurred in August instead of September, and its rehiring came in September instead of October.

Industrial Job Report.

Meanwhile, the Labor Department issued its regular bi-monthly report yesterday on unemployment in major industrial areas, and it showed a continuation of the worsening trend that began at the turn of the year.

The survey covers conditions in 150 areas. It said that there were 42 areas with unemployment of 6 per cent or more in September, compared to 37 in July, 31 in January, and 35 a year ago. In September 1958, when the country was pulling out of a recession, there were 89.

The report also said that employers' plans for hiring in the next few months point to "little net change."

By the Associated Press

Four areas shifting from moderate to substantial labor surplus were Birmingham, Ala.; San Diego, Calif.; Canton, O., and Muskegon-Muskegon Heights, Mich. These areas have from 6 to 9 per cent unemployment.

Jersey City, N. J., newly added to make the 150th major industrial area on the survey, was placed in the substantial labor surplus area in September.

The other changes: Milwaukee and Kenosha, Wis., and Columbus, O., moved from the low unemployment group to moderate labor surplus category, having from 3 to 6 per cent unemployment.

ESTIMATES 12,000,000 DIP IN TV DEBATE AUDIENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (UPI)—A television audience measuring service reported today that an estimated 62,500,000 persons viewed the Nixon-Kennedy debate last night, nearly 12,000,000 fewer than saw the first encounter.

The service said about 25 per cent of the sets turned on during the hour-long debate last night were not tuned to the debate and 40 per cent of all TV sets were not turned on.

U.S. ASSAILS 'MONSTROUS' RED CHINA STATEMENT IT WOULD WELCOME A-WAR

KHRUSHCHEV FOR ONE-THIRD VOICE IN U.N. FOR RED COUNTRIES

Soviet Premier Predicts End to Preponderance of Western Votes in the General Assembly.

By DONALD GRANT
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 8 — Soviet Premier Khrushchev demanded a one-third voice in the United Nations at a press conference late yesterday.

He called also for a special session of the General Assembly to be held in Europe early next year, devoted to the disarmament question.

He repeated threats to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany unless the German problem is solved at a new summit conference. He said British Prime Minister Macmillan had assured him that there would be another summit conference — though a British spokesman later denied this.

Diplomats here today considered Khrushchev's demand for a one-third voice in the U.N. one of the most significant statements he had made here and one explaining much of the Russian leader's belligerence at this session of the General Assembly.

Vote Preponderance.

Answering questions at a luncheon given by the United Nations Correspondents Association, Khrushchev said the Western nations at the moment have the preponderance of votes in the Assembly.

"Today we, the socialist states, are in the minority," he added, "but that is indeed a changeable situation and although today we are in the minority, tomorrow we prophesy that you will be in the minority."

The Communist countries, he declared in effect, are demanding a one-third voice in all the organs of the United Nations. He mentioned specifically both the Secretariat and the Security Council. Previously he had demanded that Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold be replaced by a three-man directorate, one representing the Communists, one the West and one the neutralists.

If these demands are not met, Khrushchev said, the Soviet Union will be forced to rely on its own strength—outside the United Nations.

There was a confusion in translation at this point. The first translation spoke of relying on force, but later it was changed to strength.

However, Khrushchev said a continued denial of what he called Soviet rights would aggravate tensions, and "this can lead to God knows what, because any aggravation, any exacerbation of the situation may in the final analysis lead to the cold war turning into a hot war."

Khrushchev sought to justify his claim to one-third total power in the United Nations by reciting world population figures. There are, he said, some three billion persons in the world. Of these, he said, one billion are Communist, somewhat fewer than a billion are in the Western camp and somewhat more than a billion are in the uncommitted nations.

Power in the United Nations should, therefore, be divided equally among these three groups, Khrushchev said in effect.

Khrushchev said he had talked to Macmillan about a special disarmament session of the General Assembly.

"At the present session of the General Assembly," Khrushchev said, "the necessary conditions for a useful discussion of disarmament are absent. Our hindrance is that this session has coincided with the electoral campaign in the United States. For that reason the United States cannot actively participate in solving this all-important question . . .

"I have proposed a special session (of the General Assembly) be held in February or March.

ENVOYS OF NEW NATIONS INVITED TO WHITE HOUSE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 8 (AP) — President Eisenhower has invited delegates from new U.N. member-countries to meet with him in Washington Friday, diplomatic sources said today.

They said he would send a plane to New York to fly the delegates to Washington for a luncheon and bring them back the same day.

One report was that the affair had been arranged for Friday.

Seventeen newly-independent countries have been taken into the United Nations since Sept. 20. Sixteen of them are African and the other is Cyprus.

PRESIDENT TRIES TO GET PRINCESS TO VOTE FOR NIXON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP)—President Eisenhower tried yesterday to line up a very special vote for Richard M. Nixon—that of Princess Paola of Belgium.

The President spoke with tongue in cheek at a White House luncheon for Prince Albert, brother of the King of the Belgians, and his blonde princess.

The President's suggestion was not completely fantastic. Mr. Eisenhower told his guests, about 90 besides the royal couple, that he had just learned: "The princess is a citizen of the United States under an old Maryland law by reason of the fact that she is a descendant of Lafayette."

The president went on, "I have been trying to persuade her to stay here until Nov. 8, and I am doing a little bit of electioneering to see her vote is on the right side."

U.S. SUBMARINE BUZZED AT SEA BY CUBAN PLANE

State Department Protests Against 'Repeated Low Passes' Off Key West.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (UPI)—The United States today said a Cuban air force plane buzzed a United States submarine "in an aggressive manner" 28 miles off Key West, Fla., yesterday.

The State Department said it protested against the incident in a note delivered to the Cuban embassy here last night, demanding that Cuba "take such steps as many be required to prevent a repetition."

Officials said the submarine Balao, accompanied by a Navy S-2F escort aircraft, was on maneuvers in international waters more than 60 miles from Cuba.

They said a Cuban air force Sea Fury "suddenly dove on them and made repeated low passes?"

The Sea Fury is a British-made propeller aircraft.

The State Department said the incident occurred between 11:47 a.m. and 12:24 p.m. "in an area regularly used for training exercises and in clearly defined international waters."

It said the Cuban plane bore the number 510.

No shots were fired.

Unsafe Demonstration.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 8 (UPI)—A paint shed under construction for the National Safety Engineers brust into flames last night. When welders tried to extinguish the blaze, they discovered the fire extinguisher was empty. The extinguisher had been provided by the safety engineers.

Debate Was Waste of Breath For Most Joe Smiths in Denver

DENVER, Oct. 8 (UPI)—For all the difference it makes to Joe Smith, Dick Nixon and Jack Kennedy may as well save their breath.

Immediately after the Kennedy-Nixon television debate last night, United Press International called every Joe Smith in the Denver telephone book, for reactions.

Five calls went unanswered. One Smith phone was busy, steadily, for more than 30 minutes.

Six Smiths said they didn't watch the debate. One admitted: "I started to watch, but I fell asleep."

Of the 17, only five Smiths were available for comment.

One said he was for Nixon.

Three were for Kennedy.

One would not say which candidate he preferred.

One Mrs. Joe Smith said: "I was making grape jelly, and didn't watch them too close, but my mind wasn't changed. I'm a Democrat."

WADSWORTH FIGHTING TO KEEP PEIPING OUT OF THE U.N.

Quotes From Communist Party Journal Predicting Bright Future for Survivors of Battle.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 8 (UPI) — The United States, fighting to keep Red China out of the United Nations, today cited a "monstrous and fantastic" official statement by the Peiping government it would welcome an atomic war.

United States ambassador James J. Wadsworth quoted the statement from the official journal of the Central Committee of the Chinese Communist party in reply to demands by Russia, its satellites and some neutrals that the Peiping regime be seated in place of the Chinese Nationalists led by Chiang-Kai-shek.

The Assembly was expected to vote soon and approve, for the tenth consecutive time, a United States move to shelve the China representation issue for another year. The action was expected to be by a reduced majority from previous years, however.

Nothing to Fear.

"The Chinese Communists have even said, at the very moment when we are trying to find ways of eliminating atomic weapons, that they have nothing to fear from, and in fact would welcome, atomic warfare," Wadsworth said.

"This is a monstrous and fantastic statement."

Wadsworth noted that when he had referred to this previously, Polish Communist party boss Wladyslaw Gomulka expressed doubt and asked for his source.

"I quoted that amazing Chinese Communist view that thermonuclear war would lead to a truly beautiful future for its survivors," Wadsworth said. "That was in an article entitled 'Long Live Leninism' in the April issue of Red Flag, the official journal of the Central Committee of the Chinese Communist Party."

Wadsworth said he had several sources for another statement the Peiping regime was prepared to sacrifice half of China's 600,000,000 population in the belief the surviving 300,000,000 would "proceed to communize whatever is left to the world."

Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa said his country had quit being a satellite of the "Imperialist government of the United States" and would vote to seat Communist China.

Previous Record.

In announcing the revolutionary Cuban government's support of seating the Peiping regime, Roa spoke scornfully of Cuba's long previous record of voting against such a move. He said this was just a case of a servant following the orders of its master.

He described the Peiping government as one freely chosen by the people of China and having complete economic and political control over Chinese territory. Opponents of its admission to the U.N., he said, were the "enemies of mankind."

Roa opened the showdown phase of the Assembly's debate on whether it should formally place the China representation question on its agenda.

Finland also threw its support behind a full debate on the China question.

Australia's Sir Garfield Barwick questioned whether the Assembly could consider the China question against the background of "such a threat as made by the delegate of the Soviet Union last Saturday."

Pressure Mentioned.

"This organization exists to deny rights under the threat of force of arms," Barwick said. "It is unthinkable this Assembly, with any self-respect, could yield to such pressure at such a time."

Khrushchev was to have made a speech on disarmament today,

CASTRO FORCES CHASING REBELS ON 3 FRONTS; 15 FLEE PRISON

Prisoners Escape From Morro Castle at Havana—Invaders Pursued in Hills of Oriente Province.

Fifteen men convicted of conspiring against the regime made a spectacular escape at dawn yesterday from ancient Morro Castle prison which guards Havana Bay.

Announcing the prison break last night, the Armed Forces Ministry said five navy men charged with guarding the prisoners aided the fugitives. Presumably the five also escaped.

The ministry gave no other details of the break, but said it was linked with the landing of a band of armed invaders, three of them Americans, in Oriente province earlier this week.

Chasing Other Invaders.

The government said Thursday that soldiers and militiamen were pursuing the remaining 24 invaders who escaped into the hills of the eastern province. One of the original band of 27 was reported killed and two captured.

Other anti-Castro units already operating in Oriente recently raided several military posts and civilian stores for arms and supplies, unconfirmed reports said.

Castro's forces also have been chasing bands of insurgents in the mountains of south central Cuba. A courier service is known to have been established by anti-Castro women in Havana to buy medicines and take them to these counter-revolutionists.

One of several unconfirmed reports of defections and uprisings said 32 Castro army men and officers were executed after disaffection was discovered at Managua military base outside Havana and at La Cabana fortress, which adjoins Morro Castle.

Most of the 15 who escaped from the prison were believed to be navy men. The list of their names issued by the government shed no light on their backgrounds.

A Difficult Feat.

The break from thick-walled, centuries - old Morro Castle, bounded on three sides by water, was considered a difficult feat.

On its fourth side is a modern four-lane superhighway which swings through a tunnel under Havana bay into the heart of the city's older section.

In the last few weeks armed militiamen have taken up night-long vigils — two to a block — in the central part of the city. Their appearance followed a series of bomb explosions.

ONE SPONSOR BARS USE OF NAME ON RUSSIAN'S SHOW

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (AP)—One of the sponsors of a television program, on which Soviet Premier Khrushchev is scheduled to appear tomorrow, has disassociated its name from the show.

The sponsor said, however, it would still pay its share of the program.

Sutro Bros. & Co., a brokerage firm, announced yesterday it would not have the firm's name mentioned in Khrushchev's appearance on "Open End."

"To supply a platform for the master technician of Communist propaganda, to us, would be unconscionable," said a Sutro partner.

David Susskind will be the moderator and a panel of writers will question Khrushchev.

The program will be carried in St. Louis by KPLR-TV, beginning at 9:30 p.m. Sunday.

A rerun on tape will be carried Thursday at 9:30 p.m. by KETC.

OPPOSITION LEADER IS GIVEN PRISON TERM ON FORMOSA

TAIPEI, Formosa, Oct. 8 (AP)—Lei Chen, leader of a projected opposition party in Nationalist China, was sentenced by a military court today to seven years' imprisonment on each of two counts. But the court ruled he will have to serve only 10 years.

Lei, a publisher, was convicted of harboring an alleged Communist spy, Liu Tzu-ying, an accountant for Lei's fortnightly magazine, Free China. He also was convicted of attempting to incite riots and rebellion. The charge was sedition.

Ma Chih-su, the magazine's business manager, was sentenced to a five-year term on the same charge.

beard and had his own lighting expert adjust illumination on the set to minimize his heavy jowls and brighten the shadows under his overhanging brows.

Effort to Capitalize.

The Democrats sought to capitalize on Nixon's difficulties by placing newspaper advertisements saying: "Hear Senator Kennedy debate on TV and radio tonight. No change in make-up or lighting."

Kennedy used no make-up, relying on his natural tan, his aids said.

But Kennedy had lighting problems of his own. Trying out the set before the program began, he complained that two lights would be shining in his eyes, whereas Nixon would have only one shining in his. At Kennedy's insistence one light was turned out.

Kennedy arrived at the studio, in northwest Washington, exactly on schedule at 6:30 p.m., an hour before the start of the program, in his light gray Pontiac convertible coupe. He was accompanied by his brother Robert, Theodore C. Sorensen, his principal speech writer, and J. Leonard Reinsch. His communications consultant.

Nixon was 21 minutes late, arriving in the Vice President's black Cadillac sedan with his appointments secretary, Donald Hughes. Both candidates wore blue shirts. Kennedy's suit was black, Nixon's gray.

Jokes About Temperature.

The nominees went separately to the set for final lighting adjustments and focussing of cameras. Kennedy, informed that the temperature was only 64 degrees, suggested jokingly that he might have to put on a sweater. (An Associated Press account said that Kennedy asked that the room be warmed up and that NBC, host for the evening, said it would oblige.)

Nixon was heard to say, "I hope I can keep the perspiration off." In the course of the program, he dabbed his lips with a handkerchief seven times.

The candidates met for the first time last night one minute before the program began. Kennedy walked over to where Nixon was sitting, and they shook hands.

During the program, Kennedy spoke with his characteristic machine-gun delivery, emphasizing his words with the stabbing forefinger, chopping motion of the open hand, and pounding of the fist, which are parts of his usual platform manner.

Reacts Sharply.

Nixon kept his hands folded on his lectern through almost the entire hour. He rarely looked at Kennedy, but his head snapped toward the Senator at one point, when Kennedy said Nixon had distorted a statement suggesting that President Eisenhower should have apologized for the U-2 spy plane flight.

Kennedy kept a page of notes on his lectern and crammed his answers with facts and figures. Nixon relied more on general statements.

Posing afterward with photographers, the nominees chatted briefly. Nixon brought up the subject of "crowdmanship," the game of estimating the size of a political turnout, and suggested that they could agree both have had good crowds.

Kennedy told a reporter afterward that he considered the program a "good exchange," but thought the two and one-half minutes allowed for an answer was not always enough to discuss an issue adequately.

LABOR PARTY ENDS SESSION, FAILS TO SETTLE DISPUTE

SCARBOROUGH, England, Oct. 8 (AP)—Britain's Labor party ended its annual conference yesterday settling the big fight within its ranks.

The left-wingers had one victory, getting the conference to support a neutralist policy which calls for Britain Alliance. The right-wingers, led by party leader Hugh Gaitskell, intend to fight to nullify that decision. The 258 Labor members of the House of Commons and a small number of Labor peers will meet later this month to elect a party.

SUPERSONIC ATOM BOMBER IS ORDERED BY BRITAIN

LONDON, Oct. 8 (AP) — The British Government placed orders yesterday for a reconnaissance-bomber aircraft capable of carrying a nuclear load at twice the speed of sound.

Defense Minister Harold Watkinson said the multi-purpose aircraft would be practically invulnerable at low levels and would play a leading role in British front line defense after 1965. Size of the initial order was not disclosed. It was placed with the British Aircraft Corp., a new combine of leading British aviation companies.

GATES, LABOR MEET ON MISSILE BASE LAG

© New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8—Top labor leaders met with Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr. yesterday and pledged their full co-operation in preventing further delays in the lagging high priority missile-base program.

The nine-man group was headed by George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO.

After the meeting, Nicholas Zonarich, director of the AFL-CIO Industrial Union department, announced that, at Meany's direction, his department and the federation's building and construction trades division had set up a committee to work out machinery to solve jurisdictional disputes on the missile bases.

Some of the union leaders indicated to Gates that they would go to missile construction sites in the next few weeks to talk to workers.

In addition to Meany and Zonarich, the following union presidents attended the meeting: A. J. Hayes of the Machinists; C. J. Haggerty of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades department; Gordon M. Freeman of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; Peter T. Shoemann of the Plumbers and Pipefitters, and Joseph J. Delaney of the Operating Engineers.

Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers, and David J. McDonald of the Steelworkers were invited, but sent representatives instead.

Gates said the job is only one-tenth completed but predicted that, barring further delays, the missile-base program would be back on schedule by early 1961.

KENNEDY SAYS G.O.P FARM PLAN BENEFITS NO ONE

Democratic Nominee Returns to Kentucky for Addresses in 3 Cities.

By THOMAS W. OTTENAD
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WITH KENNEDY IN KENTUCKY, Oct. 8—For the third time in four days, Senator John F. Kennedy brought his campaign into Kentucky today, charging that Republican policies have cut farm income by three and one-half billion dollars.

The Democratic presidential nominee flew to Lexington last night from Washington after his joint television appearance with Vice President Richard M. Nixon. Aids reported Kennedy was "pleased" with the outcome of his second face-to-face meeting with his Republican rival.

Before taking off in his private plane for the flight to Kentucky, the Massachusetts Senator discussed civil rights at a workshop meeting of the American Council of Human Rights at Howard University in Washington.

In a speech prepared for delivery in Bowling Green, he asserted that the Republican farm policy has benefited no one. He said:

"It is a program which has harmed the taxpayer, the consumer and the farmer, and it has wasted nine billion dollars worth of food which now lie unused in our warehouses.

I cannot believe that the American people or the American farmers are going to vote for four more years of this kind of program."

The only bright spot in the farm economy, Kennedy said, is the tobacco program, which he added, was originated by a Democratic Administration. He charged that Nixon, who recently indorsed the tobacco program, hadn't given active backing to it previously.

Kennedy attributed the success of the tobacco program principally to the use of strong measures to control production. Strong controls over other crops are a major provision of the general farm policy outlined recently by Kennedy.

He attacked Nixon's farm program as merely a continuation of those followed by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson.

Kennedy's previous Kentucky appearances were in Louisville last Wednesday and in Covington on Thursday.

In his address last night at Howard University, the Democratic candidate called for authority for the Attorney General to institute suits to enforce all constitutional rights. This authority now is limited to cases involving voting rights. He also urged equal opportunities for employment and improved educational opportunities for all students, regardless of race.

Noting the rising demand for freedom in many nations, Kennedy said he had, on occasion, had "a very basic disagreement" with Democratic, as well as Republican, policy involving colonialism. He said he had disagreed with American policy concerning Indo-China under former President Harry S. Truman and with policy toward Algeria during the Eisenhower Administration.

The Council on Human Rights represents about 100,000 women college students and alumnae, most of them Negroes. It has supported the "sit-in" movement as part of a program designed to strengthen human rights.

U.S. Says Soviet Warning On Bonn Is Diversionary Tactic

Charges Note on Arming West Germany With Rockets Is Effort to Turn Attention From Red Actions.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP)—The United States says the latest Russian note on Germany is an attempt to divert the eyes of the world from recent Soviet activities.

The note warned that Russia would take counter measures if the North Atlantic Treaty Organization armed West Germany with rockets.

In a reply last night, the State Department said the note showed that the Russian high command "feels compelled to engage in obvious distortions because it realizes that its own actions over recent months have, in increasing measure, caused apprehension and concern throughout the world."

The United States reply, which came in the form of a comment rather than a formal note, said that East Germany, which began arming in 1948, now has four to five times as many armed personnel as West Germany, in proportion to population.

The State Department also said the Soviet note was an attempt to confuse discussions at the United Nations.

The "hypocritical nature" of Soviet accusations, the State Department continued, was shown in May 1959 and May 1960 when heavy forces of East German troops marched in East Berlin past banners calling for a demilitarized West Berlin.

To emphasize the point, the Department released photographs showing tanks and East German troops parading in East Berlin.

The Soviet note was released in Moscow by Tass news agency and broadcast by the Moscow radio. It was a reply to a note from the United States of Aug. 8.

Tass reported the Soviet Union said it "felt it to be its duty to warn the government of the United States again of the danger of the course it is steering and to declare that the government of the Soviet Union cannot watch with indifference the arming of West Germany with rocket weapons."

BENSON TO BE ON HAND WHEN NIXON VISITS UTAH

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 8 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson said he would be on hand Monday when Vice President Richard M. Nixon brings his Republican presidential campaign to Utah. They may even appear on the same platform.

The two have not been in agreement on the farm program, and the Vice President has not been asking Benson for any campaign help.

Nixon speaks in Salt Lake's Mormon tabernacle Monday night. Benson, in Salt Lake City for a weekend church conference, plans to stay here next week.

NIXON SWINGS TO MIDWEST FOR CAMPAIGN TALKS

Promises Give-'Em-Hell Tactics Against Democratic Rival From Now On.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP)—Pledged to a "give 'em hell" battle and pleased with the second round of the televised presidential debate, Vice President Richard M. Nixon carries his campaign back to the Midwest today.

After last night's meeting, the Republican presidential candidate told several hundred staff workers at a pep rally: "It's not going to be like 1948. We're going to really give 'em hell from now on." His give 'em hell reference was to the style of Harry S. Truman's campaign 12 years ago which produced a surprise victory over Thomas E. Dewey.

Nixon's first scheduled speech today was at LaCrosse, Wis. He was to campaign later in the day at Rochester, Minn., and Milwaukee. Tonight he will fly to Billings, Mont., and remain there until Monday morning.

At Rochester he will shake hands with 21 Nixons who are not related to him and with a Minnesota farmwife who is.

Mrs. Wilford Haukom of rural Hayfield, Minn., says she is Nixon's third cousin. Republicans arranged also to bring 12 Nixons to Rochester from Minneapolis and nine from St. Paul. None of the 21 claims kinship with the candidate, but all have asserted they are Republicans.

Next week, Nixon's fourth of active campaigning after being hospitalized for a knee injury, takes him to the West Coast and back.

SEWER DISTRICT BOARD GRANTS INCREASES IN EXECUTIVES' PAY

Director Will Be Paid $12,000 to $25,000—New Schedules Approach Proposed City Salaries.

Pay increases for executives of the Metropolitan Sewer District were approved yesterday by the district's board of trustees. The new schedules, which will become effective next Saturday, will bring salaries of executives more in line with the recently proposed figures for city department heads.

Only two persons, who were appointed on an interim basis, will benefit immediately from the new schedules. All of the other executives already receive salaries above the new authorized minimums.

Under the new schedules, the range for executive director will be $12,000 to $25,000 a year. The former executive director, William Q. Kehr, received an annual salary of $15,000.

Peter F. Mattei, appointed to the position on an interim basis, has been paid $11,200 annually, the sum he received as assistant executive director. He will be paid at the minimum $12,000 rate as approved by the new schedules until a permanent appointment is made by the trustees.

The salary schedules for other executive personnel include: secretary-treasurer and director of finance, $10,000 to $20,000; general counsel, $12,000 to $25,000; personel department, subdistrict development, maintenance department and construction department directors, all $9000 to $14,000, and engineering department director, $10,000 to $16,000.

Present Salaries.

Present salaries of executive personnel are: secretary-treasurer and engineering department director, $11,000; subdistrict development department, maintenance department and construction department directors, $10,000 each; general counsel, $13,500; personnel department director, $9600.

James Hill, accounts supervisor, is acting director of finance, but his salary had not been increased above the $7500 provided by his Civil Service classification. Under the new schedule, he will receive the minimum $10,000 authorized for the position until a permanent appointment is made. Before his resignation to take another job, former finance director Richard B. Piatt received $11,000.

Louis J. Stiers, board chairman, said it was becoming extremely difficult for the district to obtain and hold executives, technicians and engineers because of the low salary ranges originally established in 1956 and 1958.

"During the last several months the Metropolitan Sewer District lost two key members of its staff—the executive director and director of finance—because we could not pay comparable salaries nor could we offer any hope for advancement under the situation," Stiers declared.

"In spite of the fact that the district is still without legal authority to inaugurate a pension program, we believe that with the passage of this new ordinance the Metropolitan Sewer District will now have salary ranges that will permit us to offer advancement and security to the very best personnel available on a long range basis."

Sewer Purchase Advances.

In other action, the board advanced a plan to purchase privately owned sanitary sewer facilities in the Malborough and Heege-Valcour subdistricts for a total cost of $417,500 by declaring the purchase to be a public necessity.

The adjacent subdistricts, southwest of St. Louis in the vicinity of U.S. Highway 66 and Heege and Laclede Station roads, were created at a meeting of the board June 24. At that time, the trustees announced the plans to buy assets of Town Service Inc. for about $400,000.

Facilities of the private firm in the Malborough subdistrict would cost $220,000. The purchase would be financed by the sale of general obligation bonds, if voters in the area approved a bond issue in a special election. A two-thirds majority is necessary for approval.

The $197,500 cost of assets in the Heege-Valcour subdistrict would be paid for by a special benefit tax assessment. Public hearings on the purchase in each of the subdistricts will be held.

The board confirmed a contract for sewer construction in the West Iveland subdistrict for a total cost of $230,000 to E. J. Fischer Co. The trustees also authorized issuing 252 special tax bills for a total of $128,915 for sewer construction in the North Webster lateral and trunk subdistricts.

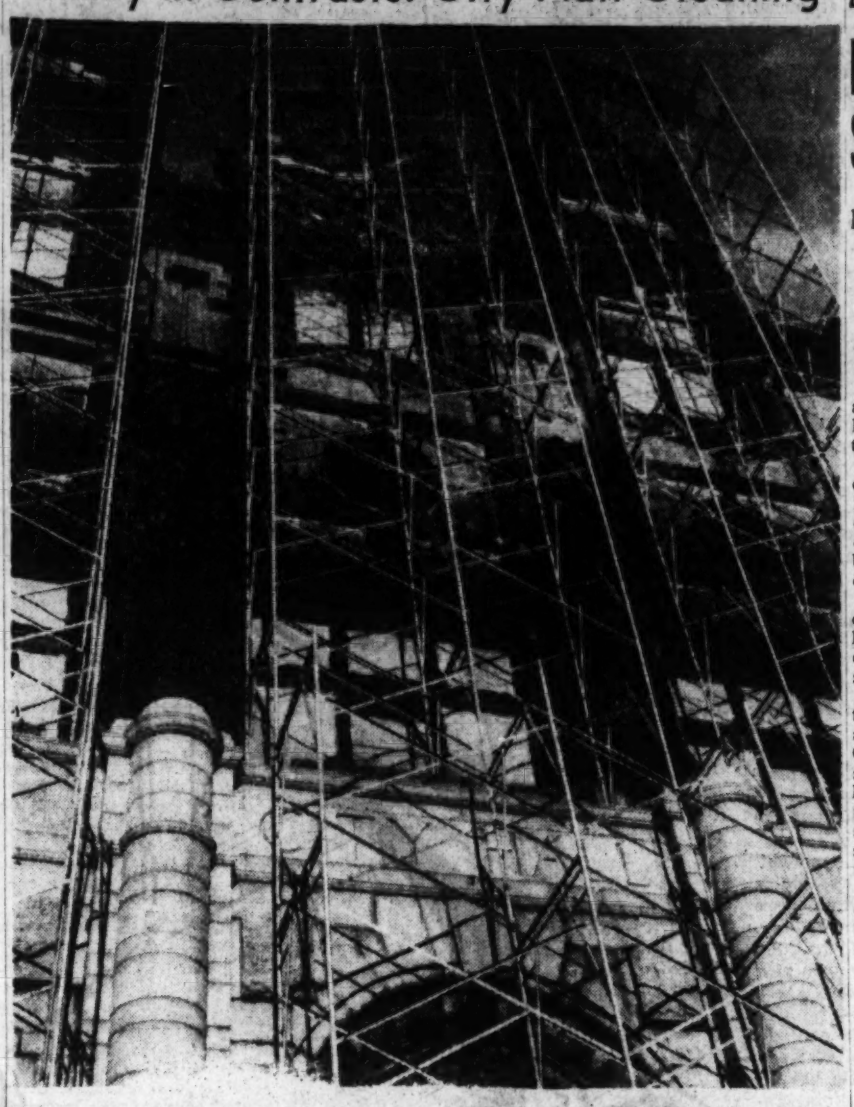

Five subdistricts were established and another re-established by the trustees at the meeting. The board's action authorized public boundary hearings in the areas.

The subdistricts are: Ladue Meadows, north of Ladue road and west of Mosley road in the western part of the Creve Coeur-Frontenac area, and Blendair and Mosley lane laterals in the same area; Magnet drive was re-established with revised boundaries in Olivette; Dielman road lateral, contiguous with the Magnet drive subdistrict, and Greendale lateral, storm-water sewers in an area near St. Charles and Normandy roads, St. Louis county.

A public interest hearing in the Capitol Hill subdistrict, west of Halls Ferry road and north of Chambers road, was authorized by the board. Sewer construction in the Wright Avenue North subdistrict was declared to be a public necessity by the trustees, who authorized a public hearing to discuss the probable cost of the improvements.

Construction of lateral sanitary sewers in the Wright avenue project was estimated at about $130,000. The improvements would be paid for by special tax bills.

$1,297,389 KICKBACK AWARD TO STERLING FIRM

An award of $1,297,389 in favor of Sterling Aluminum Products Inc. of St. Charles against four former officers and employes and their relatives was ordered by Circuit Judge Franklin Ferriss at Clayton yesterday. The defendants received kickbacks from firms supplying goods and services to Sterling.

The court in its decree said four of the defendants received a total of $793,424 in kickbacks "through fraud and in gross violation of the fiduciary duties owed to the plaintiff."

Their conduct was "plainly wrong and immoral . . . and akin to embezzlement," the decision asserted.

In addition to the $793,424 in actual damages in two suits, the court ordered payment of a total of $341,165 in interest and $162,500 in punitive damages.

Defendants in one of the suits were Horace Duncan, former president and treasurer of Sterling; William M. Venner, former vice president; his daughter, Mrs. Helen V. Weisert; her husband, Walter A. Weisert Jr.; W. F. Kammermeyer, former secretary; his wife, and Herman Ernst, former plant superintendent.

In suits brought in July 1957 the company had sought $2,131,624 in connection with kickbacks allegedly received over a 10-year period, mostly from Magnesium Co. of America. East Chicago, Ind., which supplied metal castings to Sterling, and from Christiansen Corp., Oak Park, Ill., to which Sterling sold scrap metal.

In one suit the court found payments owed to the Sterling Co. by defendants as follows: Duncan, $187,064; Venner, $187,064, of which $9,32 had been received by Mrs. Weisert and $91,732 by Venner's late wife, Rhea; Kammermeyer, $187,064, which at his direction has been received by his wife, and Ernst, $181,111.

Interest at 6 per cent in this suit was fixed at $326,838. The court found also that Duncan, Venner, Kammermeyer and Ernst had acted in conspiracy with one another and thus were "jointly and severally liable" for the aggregate of the kickbacks and interest.

Punitive damages in this suit were fixed at $50,000 each for Duncan and Venner and $25,000 each for Kammermeyer and Ernst.

In the second suit the court found Sterling was entitled to $78,246, of which Duncan, Venner and Kammermeyer each owe $17,039, plus interest, and a total of $12,500 punitive damages.

In December 1957 the company accepted an offer of $221,144 by P. L. Bowser Jr., former vice president, in settlement of similar kickback claims. Bowser was not named in the litigation because he had offered to make full restitution at the time the suits were filed, the company said.

4 PERSONS KILLED IN ACCIDENTS IN ST. LOUIS AREA

Motorist Dies in Tractor-Trailer Crash — Pedestrian Is Struck by Two Cars.

Four men were killed in separate traffic accidents in the St. Louis area yesterday and early today.

Jerry E. Cathcart, a 21-year-old laborer, of 9527 West avenue, Riverview Gardens, was killed early today when his automobile collided with a tractor-trailer on U.S. Highway 67 in St. Louis county.

County police reported Cathcart was driving south apparently at high speed. The accident occurred about one-half mile south of Redman avenue.

Walter F. Detula, driver of the tractor-trailer, said he tried to avoid the collision when he saw Cathcart driving on the wrong side of the highway coming up a hill about 2 a.m. Detula pulled the tractor onto the shoulder, he said, but Cathcart's machine struck the rear wheels of the trailer.

The tractor-trailer went down a four-foot embankment after the crash and overturned. Detula was not injured. He lives at 8942 Annetta street.

Hit by Two Cars.

Tobias Unterlechner, 65, 1606 South Broadway, was killed early today when he was struck by two automobiles at South Broadway and Lafayette avenue.

The first driver, Lindell Harris, 200 Sidney street, told police he suddenly saw Unterlechner in front of his car in the street and was unable to stop in time to avoid striking him. Harris stopped his car, he said, and ran to the man's assistance.

As Harris reached Unterlechner, he said, another car driven by Walter Lee Gilbreath, Williamsville, Mo., drove over the man. Harris said Unterlechner had been moaning before the second car struck him.

Harvey D. Jones, a roofer, 4916A Laclede avenue, was killed last night in front of 10 South Euclid avenue when struck by an automobile being steered by Mrs. Virginia Herod, Wiedmann road, Manchester.

Mrs. Herod told police her automobile had stalled and she was being pushed north on Euclid by a tow truck driven by Thomas Watson, 4336 Forest Park avenue. She said she saw Jones lying in the street but was unable to stop because she had no control of her car.

Denies Truck Was in Contact.

Watson denied the tow truck was in contact with Mrs. Herod's automobile at the time. Police said Jones, 29, had been ordered out of several taverns in the neighborhood shortly before the accident.

Robert Randolph, 46, of East St. Louis, died last night at St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, of injuries suffered earlier in the day when he fell from the rear of a pickup truck being driven by his wife, Catherine.

Mrs. Randolph said her husband had been standing in the bed of the truck holding some furniture they were transporting to their home at 416A North Twelfth street. As she made a left turn from State street into Twelfth, in East St. Louis, she said, her husband lost his balance. His head struck the pavement.

Illinois Personal Property Tax Assessment Method Ruled Illegal

Court Finds for Defendants in Test Case Because Furniture Was Not Seen by Assessor.

The method of assessing the Illinois personal property tax was ruled illegal yesterday by Circuit Judge Quinten Spivey at Belleville. He made the decision in a test suit against St. Clair County State's Attorney John J. Hoban and his former law partner, James McRoberts.

Judge Spivey held that the method of assessing the tax "is completely erroneous, illegal, void, fraudulent and directly contrary to the law."

He ruled also that the assessment of the defendants' personal property for the years 1951 through 1956 was "illegal and fraudulent."

The state sued Hoban and McRoberts for payment of $598 in personal property taxes and penalties allegedly due for those years. The tax was levied on furniture and fixtures in the law office formerly occupied by the attorneys at 104 North Main street, East St. Louis.

Hoban and McRoberts asked to be sued to establish whether the tax is constitutional. They contended that it was allegal because the multiplier used to determine the amount of the tax due is based on studies of real rather than personal property.

The attorneys also objected to the method of administering the tax in St. Clair conuty. Testimony brought out that the county Board of Assessors did not know what property was in the law office, although a tax was levied against it.

Judge Spivey's ruling pointed out that Illinois law requires that "an assessor or his deputy personally visit the premises and examine the personal property assessed."

The judge added that the evidence "is undisputed that at no time did any member of the Board of Assessors travel the 200 feet separating the defendants' office and the office of the board of assessors to make such assessment of the defendants' personal property."

The state was unable to produce any witnesses to testify how the assessments of the defendants' property were arrived at, Judge Spivey noted.

Witnesses included John J. Keever, chief clerk of the East St. Louis office of the county Board of Assessors; James Tierney and John Keeley, members of the board, and Albert N. Nelson, supervisor of the Illinois Department of Revenue.

The three spokesmen for the board said no representative of it ever had visited the law office before the assessments were made. They testified they did not know what property was on the premises, nor did they know whether the property was owned by Hoban and McRoberts.

The attorneys had not filed a schedule listing the personal property they owned in the office, the board representatives said.

Nelson testified that the Department of Revenue assumes county boards have made proper assessments. Assessment figures sent to the department are multiplied by an equalization factor which differes from county to county, Nelson said. The multiplier, he said, is used to equalize property assessments throughout the state.

Sam Pessin, Belleville attorney, was appointed special prosecutor by the court after the Illinois Attorney General declined to prosecute the case.

POWELL RATES KENNEDY PERFECT ON F.E.P.C. BILLS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (UPI)—Negro Representative Adam Clayton Powell has given Democratic presidental nominee John F. Kennedy a perfect voting score on fair employment practices legislation and G.O.P. candidate Richard M. Nixon a zero grade.

The New York Democrat distributed a baseball-like box score at a press conference yesterday reviewing the Kennedy and Nixon voting records on such legislation from 1949 to 1954.

Powell said he made the study after Nixon charged Kennedy with ducking the civil rights issue in the South.

COURT BACKS FULL COUNTY JAIL INQUIRY

Prosecutor Told to Ask State Supreme Court to Appoint Special Commissioner.

Appointment of a special commissioner to conduct a full investigation into grand jury charges of mistreatment of prisoners at St. Louis County Jail was voted yesterday by judges of the county circuit court.

Presiding Judge Robert G. J. Hoester said the judges, meeting en banc, authorized him to request the Missouri Supreme Court to appoint a special commissioner to hear evidence in the matter and to report his findings and recommendations to the court.

Hoester said he also planned to confer with county Prosecuting Attorney Norman H. Anderson to ascertain when witnesses would be available to testify before the commissioner.

The court acted after two of its members, Judges Franklin Ferriss and Noah Weinstein, reported that there was evidence in support of the grand jury's report that prisoners at the county jail had not been treated humanely. Ferriss and Weinstein had been named previously by the other judges to look into the grand jury's complaints.

They recommended that the court en banc proceed under provisions of the state statutes which declare "it is the special duty of the court having criminal jurisdiction, at each term, to inquire and see that all prisoners are humanely treated."

In its report Sept. 16, the grand jury declared conditions in the jail were "shocking, even appalling."

The jury severely reprimanded Sheriff Orion J. Litzinger and called for the resignation of Jail Warden Ross E. Henson.

RUSSIA IMPROVING TRANSPORTATION, U.S. GROUP FINDS

A vigorous expansion of all forms of transportation in the Soviet Union is being pushed by Russian planners, a delegation representing the inland waterway industry of the United States reported here yesterday. The group recently returned from a trip to Russia.

The Americans found that Russia has a highly efficient inland waterway system connecting the main centers of production in the European part of the country.

"The supply pipeline is never filled," the report stated. "Every load is used the minute it is received. One never sees and never hears of stockpiling."

J. W. Hershey, board chairman of American Commercial Barge Line Co., was chairman of the delegation. Among the members was C. C. Taylor of St. Louis, president of Mississippi Valley Barge Line Co. The trip was sponsored by the State Department as part of an exchange program.

Douglas's Foreign Record

Senator Douglas's opponent should check his facts before charging that the Democratic Senator hasn't made a single outstanding contribution to American foreign policy in 12 years.

The charter provision by which the United Nations General Assembly can act, and has just acted, when the Security Council is handcuffed by a Russian veto was adopted in 1950 on a proposal by the United States. The State Department conceded this crucial step for united action against aggression was based on a resolution first offered in Congress by Senator Elbert Thomas (Dem.), Utah, and Paul M. Douglas (Dem.), Illinois.

The first bill to help stop the Communist thrust into the Middle East by authorizing aid to Israel was introduced by Senator Douglas with Senator Robert A. Taft (Rep.), Ohio, as his co-sponsor. It was added in committee to the over-all bill.

The Captive Nations Week Resolutions re-affirming United States intentions to support the heroic struggles of the Eastern European nations for self-determination and freedom from Soviet domination, and establishing a Captive Nations Week each year to renew this determination were introduced by Senator Douglas.

The Senate amendment to authorize the President to administer the foreign aid program so as to end the Suez Canal blockade, boycotts and other obstructions to free commerce in the Middle East was introduced by Senator Douglas."

President Harry Truman several times stated that the ablest defense of his action in resisting the Communist aggression in Korea was made by Senator Douglas.

Time magazine, hardly a partisan Democratic sheet, did a cover story featuring Douglas's able defense of the American troops participating in the NATO defensive screen of Western Europe, when Republican support for this was wavering.

When the keystone of our foreign trade policies, the reciprocal trade program, was last up for Congressional motion, Senator Cooper (Rep.), Kentucky, frankly stated that without Senator Douglas's powerful arguments and skillful legislative maneuvers, the four-year renewal never would have been passed.

Under our Constitution it is the executive that largely makes foreign policy. Few Congressional names — and those mostly from the Foreign Relations Committees — become attached to key measures. Senator Douglas's record of accomplishments on foreign policy measures is an outstanding one, particularly for one who is not a Foreign Relations Committee member.

Posy to Pruitt-Igoe

I do wish to applaud the Pruitt-Igoe parents' committee and their self-help programs. We, the citizens, let this modern slum be created.

High-rise apartment dwelling has only been successful in luxury apartments where a large staff of paid employes care for the apartments as well as the tenants' needs. The tenants are well able to provide their own recreation.

Please let us not permit this multiple, multiple housing again.

Business With Khrushchev

Why doesn't the world have peace? Because peace would put Communism out of business. How long do you think Khrushchev or any other Russian dictator could remain in power once the truth were known that the Russian people had no one to fear except their Communist masters?

What we have seen at the United Nations in the last couple of weeks on the part of the Communist dictator and his stooges has been a vulgar mockery of the peace-loving free nations of the world.

Khrushchev's arrogant affront to President Eisenhower in Paris did not take place because of the "U-2 incident." Khrushchev admitted that he knew of these flights six months before. No, Khrushchev slammed the door in the face of peace in Paris because of the great strides our popular President had made in behalf of peace in his previous world tour.

By now we must realize that we cannot do business with Khrushchev or his successors.

Playing It By Ear

A telling case for requiring regulatory commissioners personally to write decisions in support of their judgments is made in the Senate Merchant Marine subcommittee's report on decline of the coastwise and intercoastal shipping industry. Though it applies particularly to the Interstate Commerce Commission, it is applicable to the other regulatory agencies as well, for in all of them decisions are written, if at all, only by ghost-writers. And as ICC Commissioner Webb has said, these ghost-writers, having little or no guidance from the commission, are "quite naturally disposed to write ad hoc opinions having a minimum of value as a precedent."

The results are often fantastic. The subcommittee, instancing a few examples out of an undoubtedly rich supply, tells of a proposed railroad piggyback rate on liquor to Houston which the commission rejected last February. Three months later the same railroads resubmitted the same rate, slightly disguised, and the ICC Suspension Board approved it. The decision was appealed by a water carrier to the commission's appellate division, known as Division 2, and was sustained. So the rate went into effect four months after the commission as a whole had rejected it.

ICC Chairman Winchell, admitting the error, promised that "every effort will be made to avoid a similar situation in the future" No effort whatever has been made, however, as the subcommittee shows. In another case a rate on automobiles proposed by motor carriers was rejected because the charge per vehicle was the same regardless of weight or value. Railroads used the same device of a uniform rate for autos, regardless of weight or value, and the ICC upheld it. Another time, a piggyback rate on cleaning compound was suspended by the Suspension Board because it was identical with the coastal shipping rate. Seven months later the same railroads reintroduced the same rate, only 1 cent lower, the Board approved it, and Division 2 upheld the Board.

Is it any wonder the water carriers complain they cannot tell what the commission requires for a successful case against a rate? The commission has no set standards of its own as to either criteria or procedure. It has handed down no standards either to its Suspension Board or to its Division 2. If Division 2 reverses the Suspension Board, the latter would not know the reason why, and would have no basis for correcting its mistake in its next decision. In fact, if the mistake were repeated it might then be upheld by Division 2.

The absence of meaningful personal decisions by the commissioners in the ICC and the other regulatory agencies leaves these agencies to operate too much by caprice. The regulators need a growing body of opinions to which applicants before them may refer for guidance, in the interest of presenting evidence that will support their case, and by which the commission itself may be guided, in the interest of reasoned fairness and consistency.

Our heritage of regulatory principles and procedures is shockingly scanty as the regulatory process inches toward its centenary mark. Too much of what is being done continues to be done largely by ear. It is time we put down a few notes and learned to play by them.

Lincoln, Khrushchev and TV

With television appeal becoming more and more a primary test of availability as a nominee for public office, the question of how Abraham Lincoln would have fared on TV is sometimes brought up. Those priceless photographs by Matthew Brady are irrefutable evidence that the great man was very homely.

The chances are that he would have made an ungainly appearance on TV. But what he said has proved that he was a genial and genuine man whose logic, with humor and straightforwardness enabled him to deal convincingly with questions of that day. Might not these qualities have been sufficient for today?

The manner in which Lincoln met threats of physical violence made by his opponent, Stephen A. Douglas, indicates that Lincoln would have been able to hold his own in the political campaigns of this age or even in the oratory of the United Nations General Assembly. In Paul M. Angle's "The Lincoln Reader" there is an account by Horace White, a Chicago Tribune reporter, of trouble that threatened at Havana, Ill., on a hot August day in 1858.

After hearing that Douglas had threatened him, Lincoln told a gathering on the following day that his rival for the Senate had "become a little excited . . . I shall neither fight Judge Douglas nor his second." That would only prove which was the most muscular, he explained, and anyway Douglas was merely trying to "excite the audience."

If Lincoln had sat in the United Nations General Assembly when Mr. Khrushchev launched his bombastic threats and tirades last Saturday the chances are that he would have diagnosed that too as another attempt to "excite the audience."

Opportunities in Space

Early in the seventeenth century the invention of the telescope gave the astronomers a tool which multiplied many fold the vast area that was their workshop. Now, so rapid is the progress in exploration of outer space that the planets of the solar system appear to be slipping from the grasp of the astronomers and into the outstretched hands of the geophysicists.

This somewhat ominous hint that astronomy, oldest of the sciences, is likely to be taking a back seat soon, comes from Dr. Homer E. Newell, chairman of the American Geographical Union's planning committee on planetary science. He writes in the current issue of Transactions that the great body of individuals with the techniques needed for manned and unmanned exploration of the solar system are not astronomers but geophysicists. He goes on:

"Likewise, in the international field, whereas the International Astronomical Union, the International Scientific Radio Union and the International Astronautical Federation all have interests of one sort or another in the study of planets, nevertheless the most natural home would seem to be the International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics."

Perhaps one of the most encouraging things about the push into outer space is the promise of multifold new discoveries. As Dr. Hans Bethe, professor of nuclear studies at Cornell, says: "Usually in scientific research one can't predict many of the results; the most interesting discoveries will probably come in areas where we do not expect them." Or, as Blaise Pascal, a French physicist, said 300 years ago after stating that human knowledge resembles an expanding sphere, "The larger it grows, the larger the number of points where it touches the unknown."

The promises that lie ahead in space are so many and so challenging that scientists in every field are needed to grasp these opportunities to further human knowledge.

Mr. Kennedy on Cuba

It would be as wrong for the Democrats to make a campaign issue out of "Who Lost Cuba?" as it was for the Republicans to make one out of "Who Lost China?" Senator Kennedy rose above that level at Cincinnati with an analysis of the Cuban situation that was unusually objective and constructive for a campaign effort. His criticism of the Administration record suggested sound lines of policy for the future.

The Democratic presidential candidate clearly located the basic reasons for the growth of Communist influence in Cuba and the deterioration of relations with the United States. This country failed to associate itself with Latin American demands for freedom and, instead, gave "stature and support" to the Batista dictatorship. Moreover, the Administration did not help Cuba meet its economic needs, but did support the private American interests that dominated the Cuban economy.

Senator Kennedy noted that his opponent, Vice President Nixon, now admits that a strong development aid program might have helped to prevent the Castro revolt. But Mr. Nixon missed that point on his visit to Cuba five years ago and the Administration's new Latin American aid plan comes too late where Cuba is concerned.

Senator Kennedy was frank to concede that he knows of no magic formula that can rescue Cuba for democracy now. He has no basic disagreement with current Administration policy; he has opposed unilateral intervention and supported co-operation with the Organization of American States. But he ought to clarify or disavow an earlier remark at Springfield, Ill., that the United States "observe with some interest" the new rebels in the mountains "growing beards in preparation for undoing Mr. Castro." This statement implies the kind of intervention which Mr. Kennedy at other times has declared would be dangerous.

Neglect of Latin America did not begin with the Eisenhower Administration but it certainly should be ended by the next one. Senator Kennedy shows a clear understanding of that.

Joint and Unusual

St. Louis county's Republican candidates for the Legislature have issued a joint and unusual statement. It lists a 13-point legislative program on which they all agree, including support of a conflict-of-interest law, unit control of the St. Louis school system, a point-system driver's license, stronger mental health program, elimination of mandatory severance for defendants in rape cases, a spring primary and tax revisions to assure better revenue collection.

These are sound proposals and the county Republican candidates merit applause for telling the voters what they would propose to do in Jefferson City. Now, what do the county's Democratic candidates propose to do? A clear legislative program from their side would help the voters make rational choices for the Legislature.

Laborites and the Bombs

Great Britain would adopt a policy of unilateral nuclear disarmament, withdraw from NATO and follow a virtually pacifist line if the House of Commons were to vote as did the rebellious trade union representatives at the Labor party's Scarborough conference.

Led by Frank Cousins of the Transport Workers, Britain's big catch-all union, they scored their victory over the opposition of Hugh Gaitskell, the party leader. Since the Parliamentary Labor party, made up of the Labor members in Commons, rather than the conference, elects the party leader in Commons, Gaitskell refused to resign. Yet he did suffer a rebuff.

On disarmament as well as on nationalization, the line was drawn clearly between the realistic "eggheads" and the doctrinaire leaders who stood pat on the party constitution of 1918. In both cases, the "eggheads" realized how much has changed in the last 40 years. But they won on nationalization probably only because that issue was largely blamed for Labor getting only 12,000,000 votes in the last elections, several millions less than were needed to win. Even though the Gaitskell faction will continue to support NATO and an armed Britain, the conference dispute hardly seems likely to help the Laborites the next time Britain votes.

But it did show how concerned "the average man" is about the threat of the big bombs. The rebels are not Communist fifth columnists, eager to surrender a defenseless Britain to the Russians. Like people all over the world, they want to escape slavery to the bombs. For that matter, so would Gaitskell. But he has the intelligence to know that release from terror is not to be achieved by abandoninig a strong defense. It must be achieved through reasonable agreement. And for this, he will work whether in the government or in the opposition. And so must we all.

There's Also Boola-Boola

The Milwaukee branch of the University of Wisconsin — which has its own football team, band and drum majorettes is tired of singing "On, Wisconsin." It wants a song of its own. Right. And may we suggest "Far Above Cayuga's Waters?" At the last probably inaccurate count, this was the battle hymn of no less than 50 major colleges — and nobody knows how many minor colleges and high schools. Of course, the words were suitably changed. Beyond question, it's a stirring tune. But one of these days a prize probably will be offered for new music and new words at Cornell, the only school far above Cayuga's waters.

"OH, YES—HE WAS HERE, BUT HE JUST LEFT."

Pulpwood in the Missouri Ozarks

Industry Offers Growing Economic Return on Wood Now Difficult to Sell

George O. White,
Former State Forester, in
The Ozarks Mountaineer

The Timber Resource Review of the United States Forest Service, published in 1958, has indicated that we will probably have in the United States at the end of forty more years approximately twice as many people as we have now. Timber products have been maintaining their position of demand in the national economy, with a marked shift in product composition towards pulpwood.

This shift has opened profitable outlets for large volumes of wood not otherwise usable. In the early 1900s, pulpwood comprised about two per cent of the industrial wood used, whereas by 1952, pulpwood had increased to 27 per cent of the total wood used in the United States.

The Mirror of Public Opinion

The above facts, and others not mentioned, indicate that forestry in the national picture has a favorable outlook. In many instances the owners of small woodlands cannot afford to make costly investments in forestry but most small woodland owners can afford to refrain from burning, overgrazing and otherwise abusing their woodlands. If they do, it is surprising how soon the deterioration will stop and the woods start to put on valuable growth at almost no cost.

There is no excess of commercial forest land in the United States. In the South, large areas of farm land have reverted to commercial forest. In view of the probable increases in population, and further urbanization, there will be less land available for commercial forestry purposes. Practically all of the 15,000,000 acres of forest land in Missouri is classified as commercial forest land; two-thirds of which is in the Ozark region south of the Missouri river. The oak-hickory type is predominant in all regions of the state, although in the Ozark region about ten per cent or 1,000,000 acres are classified as pine and oak-pine types.

If Only Trees Could Talk

During the past few years, there has been a considerable change in the use of wood for pulping purposes. Long fibered soft woods such as spruce were originally the only woods used; later new processes were developed to use pine, and now there is a continuing growth in the use of hardwoods such as oak, cottonwood, maple, etc. Most species of hardwoods can be used for some wood fiber products, although a few species like hickory, Osage orange and black locust are seldom used. Many persons in discussing the possibility of the use of more pulpwood in Missouri have been thinking in terms of the various types of paperboard rather than paper. Paperboard is the term usually used for such products as container board, bending board, non-bending board and building board.

Most of the companies operating pulp mills are intensely interested in promoting good forestry practices in the areas which they secure their pulpwood. Since most of the paper mills operate on a twenty-four hour a day basis they must have a continuous supply of wood over a long period and their financial investment will not permit frequent moves to follow the wood supply.

Responsible pulp mill owners on the other hand pay a premium for material which is harvested under good forestry practices and in many cases employ foresters to aid the timberland owners so that their woods will be improved by cutting rather than deteriorated. A pulpwood industry would be important to Missouri from the standpoint of using much wood which is now difficult to sell.

One of the major problems in connection with the processing of pulpwood is the matter of stream pollution. Different processes vary in their effects on the streams into which any wastes may flow. It is best to make plans to handle any pollution before a mill is constructed rather than to face the problem later.

The Conservation Commission recently announced a policy with regard to pulp mills in Missouri, which reads as follows: "The Conservation Commission recognizes the possible establishment of pulp mills in Missouri as a potential and beneficial use of forest resources, but would be forced to object to the establishment of such mills in locations where stream pollution might result in serious damage to fishery resources."

'But Wait!'

From The Courier-Journal, Louisville

The Congo seethes. Neutral nations demand that President Eisenhower and Premier Khrushchev meet. Castro threatens to involve us in fighting over the Navy base at Guantanamo. The Red Chinese are developing their own atomic weapons. Our U.N. leadership is seriously challenged. But wait! Times of great peril bring forth great deeds, great men, great ideas, and the Republican National Committee after many a solemn conference, emerges to reassure the nation:

Another Innocent Abroad

It is a rare pleasure to read a novel which skilfully follows in a tradition and yet maintains a distinctive sense of individuality. "After Such Knowledge" combines both these elements and is a superb achievement.

The influence of Europe on the "innocent" American was one of the favorite themes of both Henry James and Edith Wharton. Here the author shows how a young American girl, Mona Miller, goes to Paris with her worldly, wealthy mother. In this city of romance she is attracted by the sophisticated glamor of Nathan, an expatriate American, and has an affair with him which destroys all her schoolgirlish dreams. A desperate sense of guilt drives her to persuade her mother to return to New York.

Blinded by her ignorance of life, Mona thinks she is pregnant. Impetuously she tries to resolve her problem by confessing her guilt to a childhood sweetheart, Warren Tate, an upstanding, self-righteous young man, who is moved by pity and love to offer her marriage and the respectability of an ordinary life.

After discovering that his wife was mistaken, and there will be no child, Warren's bourgeois sense of respectability is so deeply shocked that he determines to punish Mona with a subtle combination of providing her with lavish material comforts, and yet offering only an emotional relationship devoid of tenderness.

Mona's life degenerates into a hollow round of desperate attempts to keep her self occupied and oblivious of the emptiness of her existence. She tries to find a refuge from despair when her child Cathy is born. This effort is frustrated by Cathy's strongly independent spirit, until her daughter presents her with the same problem that she had faced in Paris.

The author surveys her characters with an ironic detachment and a meticulous eye for human weaknesses and follies. Her social milieu is limited, but nowhere is the touch of complete assurance lost, whether she is describing a debutante ball, or Mr. Tate, the frail invalid who is the head of the family. Her comedy of manners is interspersed with startlingly vivid descriptions . . . Mona's life "like a pat of butter, had been stamped by the same mould that marked her mother's; they were, she thought, less different than their clothes. Mona saw herself as an endless chain of paper dolls."

The author's clear-sighted view of life, and the overwhelming dangers of being dictated by circumstances, has created a memorable novel in the best American literary tradition.

THE LAUREATES, by Tina Levitan (Twayne, 236 pgs., $4.50.)

From 1901 to 1959 there have been 313 winners of the world-famous Nobel Prizes, which were established by Alfred Bernhard Nobel, the inventor of dynamite. Annually, the prizes are awarded to those men and women who have contributed most to humanity's benefit in the fields of physics, chemistry, physiology and medicine, literature and world peace.

Miss Levitan focusses attention on those winners who were Jewish, presenting a highly compressed view of their lives and achievements. Her definition embraces all those born of a Jewish mother. Thus far, 40 of the laureates have been Jewish or half-Jewish. Eight of the 40 have been Americans.

While the descriptions are abbreviated, the writing is clear and interesting.

FUNERAL IN LOS ANGELES FOR MISS BERTHA DOANE

Funeral services for Miss Bertha Doane, a member of the St. Louis public library staff for more than 57 years, will be held Tuesday at Los Angeles. Burial will be in Falmouth, Mass.

Miss Doane, 82 years old, died Wednesday at a nursing home in La Crescenta, Calif. She had moved to Glendale, Calif., from her home at 5475 Cabanne avenue three weeks ago to join a sister. Miss Doane was librarian of the Cabanne branch library for 31 years, beginning in 1917. In 1948, she began half-time duties in the catalog and order department, and retired last July.

Before being assigned to the Cabanne branch, Miss Doane served at the main library in the circulation department, and was in charge of the model American library maintained by the American Library Association at the 1904 World's Fair here.

UNITED FUND MISSION EXPLAINED AT RALLY

Daniel R. Blount, director of sales training for the International Shoe Co., yesterday spoke at United Fund rallies for employes of the Sheraton-Jefferson Hotel and the Carlye Dress Corp.

"The United Fund should be thought of in specific instances of needy St. Louisans receiving help rather than in generalized terms of efficiency in charity," said Blount, who is a United Fund ambassador.

"We must remember that under the impersonal name of 'United Fund' we are underwriting the services of the hospitals to the poor, teaching a deaf child to talk, manning a lifeboat in a flood, providing jobs for the handicapped and teaching the blind to work and lead normal lives."

Blount said we dare not thank God for our blessings unless we have shared the blessing with others.

Several thousand St. Louis area employes attended 37 United Fund rallies yesterday.

Other ambassadors who spoke included James S. McClellan, who spoke at the Bank of St. Louis; H. Harold Ross, Robert Murray and George Jackson, who addressed employes of the Engineer Supply Control Office, and Andrew Ries, who spoke at the Laclede Steel Co.

BILLY GRAHAM OPENS 3-DAY SPANISH-AMERICAN CRUSADE

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (UPI)—Evangelist Billy Graham opened a three-day Spanish-American crusade in Madison Square Garden last night with a sermon so impassioned there were several shouts of "Hallelujah!" despite his pleas that there be no emotional displays.

The Evangelist's first sermon in a camapign to win converts to Protestantism from among New York's one million Spanish-speaking citizens was translated into Spanish phrase for phrase and copied gesture for gesture by the Rev. Gogelio Archilla.

More than 12,000 bible-carrying persons filed into the Garden to hear the 41-year-old Baptist minister.

MRS. MAMIE DRAYTON ZOPF FUNERAL SERVICES ARE HELD

Funeral services were held today for Mrs. Mamie Drayton Zopf, a widow, at the Hoppe undertaking establishment, 4911 Washington boulevard. Burial was at Trenton, Ill.

Mrs. Zopf, 82 years old, died Thursday at St. Luke's Hospital of infirmities. She had been a leader at Second Presbyterian Church, 4501 Westminster place, and formerly was president of the Women's Christian Board of the church.

Surviving is a son, Arnold Zopf, co-ordinator of adult education for the Board of Education, with whom she lived at 6182 Westminster.

NATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOLS CONVENE

By JOHN T. STEWART
Church Editor of the Post-Dispatch

The National Sunday School Association, an interdenominational body representing a conservative wing of Protestantism, will hold its fifteenth annual convention at Kiel Auditorium Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The principal speakers will be prominent Fundamentalist leaders. They include the Rev. Bert Webb of Springfield, Mo., N.S.S.A. president, representing the Assemblies of God; the Rev. Dr. W. A. Criswell, pastor of First Baptist Church of Dallas, Tex., largest church in the Southern Baptist Convention; the Rev. Dr. Clyde Meadows of Chambersburg, Pa., president of Christian Endeavor International; the Rev. Dr. Theodore Epp of Lincoln, Nebr., regular speaker on the "Back to the Bible" broadcast, and the Rev. Dr. Clate Risley of Chicago, executive secretary of N.S.S.A.

More than 150 churches in the St. Louis area will take part in the convention, according to the Rev. Dr. Risley.

N. S. S. A. includes representatives of 92 denominations.

The three-day convention will include eight general sessions, 100 workshops in religious education, and 50 institutes for workers in various programs of Sunday schools. The purpose of the meeting is "to improve the Sunday school, both in quality and quantity," the Rev. Dr. Risley said.

William Weston, director of St. Louis Youth for Christ, will be song leader at convention sessions. Mrs. Dorothy Luethge, organist of Hope Congregational Church, St. Louis, will be convention organist.

The N.S.S.A. board of directors, and the various commissions and committees of the organization will meet Monday and Tuesday at the Statler-Hilton Hotel. The first general session of the convention will be held at 1:15 p.m. Wednesday.

LORETTO NUNS TO OPEN PRIVATE SCHOOL IN BOLIVIA

Three Sisters of Loretto who have been stationed in St. Louis arrived at La Paz, Bolivia, today to open a private school near a parish which is operated by priests from the St. Louis archdiocese.

The nuns are Sister Peter Micheal S.L., who will be superior at the school; Sister Mary Peter S.L., and Sister Eva Maria S.L.

Sister Peter Michael, a native of Colorado, is a graduate of Webster College and has a master's degree from St. Louis University. Before entering the Catholic teaching order, she was a member of the WAVES in World War II.

Sister Mary Peter, a native of Mexico City, recently completed a year of Latin American graduate study at St. Louis University. She has taught at three St. Louis parish schools.

Sister Eva Maria was born in New Mexico, and is a graduate of Webster College. She has been teaching in parish schools in Texas.

THE REV. DR. H. DERMOT McDONALD

BRITISH THEOLOGY TEACHER, WRITER TO SPEAK HERE

The Rev. Dr. H. Dermot McDonald, professor at London Bible College, largest theological seminary in Great Britain, will be guest preacher tomorrow at Third Baptist Church, Grand and Washington boulevards. He will speak at 10:40 a.m. and 7 p.m.

The Rev. Dr. McDonald is vice principal and lecturer in historical theology at London Bible College. He has written books and articles on religious subjects, which have been widely read in the United States.

In the present academic year, he is guest professor of theology and philosophy at the American Baptist Theological Seminary, Chicago.

LUTHERAN PASTOR HAS SERVED SAME CHURCH 45 YEARS

The Rev. George Luecke Jr. recently completed 45 years as pastor of Christ Lutheran Church, Lockwood and Selma avenues, Webster Groves. It is the only pastorate he has ever served.

Pastor Luecke was graduated from Concordia Theological Seminary in June 1915, and in September that year became pastor of Christ Church, which was then on Atalanta avenue in Webster Groves. The parish had 24 baptized members: today there are 475.

In 1923, the Christ Church congregation moved to a chapel across the street from the present location; this property later was sold to the Webster Groves Board of Education. The present Christ Church was dedicated in 1942.

Pastor Luecke was born at Winfield, Kan., where his father was pastor of the Lutheran church.

NEW SERIES ON FAITH AT CATHOLIC CENTER

The fall lecture series on the Catholic faith will open at the Catholic Information Center, 310 North Eleventh Street, Monday at 7:30 p.m. Meetings will be at the same hour on Mondays and Fridays.

A new format has been developed for the study course to provide more lay participation. Students will take part in discussions, and written tests will be given to show their grasp of the materials covered. Lay catechists, who have been trained, will work with small groups of four or five persons, correcting the written tests and providing individual counseling and instruction.

The Rev. Jerome F. Wilkerson, director of the center, will conduct the course. There is no charge for the lectures, and non-Catholics as well as Catholics may attend. All sessions will be in the library on the ground floor.

Although the present series will be the first occasion that lay catechists have taken part in class instruction, the use of lay catechists at the center began two years ago. More than 1500 hours of private religious instruction have been given by the center's 20 lay catechists.

A six-point training program for the catechists includes instruction in pedagogy, doctrine and teaching aids, as well as an extensive reading list and apprentice teaching.

A series of free public lectures and inquiry forums on the subject, "What Is Catholicism?" will be held at St. Louis Cathedral beginning Monday, with a tour of the cathedral at 8:15 p.m. The first lecture will be given Thursday at the same hour in the cathedral rectory, 4431 Lindell boulevard.

Lectures will be given thereafter on Mondays and Thursdays at 8:15 p.m. Question and answer periods will follow the lectures. The course will be conducted by priests of the cathedral staff.

ANNUAL ST. DISMAS MASS TO BE OFFERED TOMORROW

The annual Dismas Mass, in honor of St. Dismas, the "Good Thief," will be offered at St. Joseph's Church, Eleventh and Biddle streets, tomorrow at 11 a.m. Bishop David Hickey, S.J., will be celebrant.

The Dismas Mass has been offered only in recent years, and Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter granted permission for the special Mass in St. Louis.

American Foreign Mission Board Celebrates 150th Anniversary

The United Church of Christ will celebrate the 150th anniversary of American foreign missions at Farmington, Conn., Tuesday and Wednesday. Two St. Louis area officers of the denomination's overseas mission board will attend the celebration.

The Rev. Dr. Elmer H. Hoefer, pastor of St. Peter's Evangelical and Reformed Church, St. Louis, and Mrs. Myrtha Cole of Belleville will represent the old Board of International Missions of the Evangelical and Reformed Church. They are members of the prudential committee of the board. Their board is merging with the Congregational American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions to form the new United Church Board for World Ministries. International Missions headquarters are at 1724 Chouteau avenue.

The United Church of Christ was formed by a merger of Congregational Christian churches with the Evangelical and Reformed Church.

Beginning of Missions.

It was the launching of the Congregational American Board in 1810 that marked the beginning of American foreign missions.

The Associated Press gives the following account of that meeting 150 years ago and missions developments since:

The action was taken by six Congregationalist leaders meeting around a small, mahogany drop-leaf table in a Farmington parsonage. With the then-Governor of Connecticut, John Treadwell, presiding, they agreed to appropriate monies for missions to non-Christian countries.

A secret student society had spurred the far-reaching move. The group, dedicated to arousing help for the "poor heathen" abroad, had been formed by five Williams College students led by a freshman, Samuel J. Mills Jr., of Torringford, Conn. He has become known as the "father of American foreign missions."

Today, a century and a half after that small start, America has become the home base for the world's biggest, most wide-ranging Protestant missionary force.

70 Pct. Are Americans.

Altogether, out of the world's 38,600 Protestant missionaries, 26,000 of them are Americans, nearly 70 per cent. Their work involves an outlay of more than $200,000,000 a year, and includes thousands of churches, hospitals and schools in 80 countries.

American Roman Catholics, whose foreign mission activity began only in the last 50 years, now have 6500 workers abroad. Most of the world's 51,000 Catholic missionaries still are Europeans. But Americans are fast taking over a bigger share of the field.

The first missionaries of the American Board, five men and three women, went to India. The average life expectancy of those early pioneers was four years.

In method, the missionary task has changed greatly. No longer do Americans go as westerners, to promote their own culture, but simply as Christians, serving as fellow workers with native Christians and their young churches.

Christian Science Lecture.

A public lecture on Christian Science will be given at First Church of Christ, Scientist, Overland, 8810 Midland avenue, Tuesday at 8 p.m. Paul W. Wavro of Jacksonville, Fla., will be the lecturer.

LUTHERAN WORK IN NIGERIA PUT ON DISPLAY HERE

A public display based on Lutheran missions in Nigeria opened today at Concordia Historical Institute, 801 DeMun avenue, Clayton. It was arranged to coincide with Nigeria's gaining of independence Oct. 1. The African country had been a British protectorate.

The exhibit also commemorates the twenty-fifth anniversary of mission work in Nigeria by the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. Many of the items on display are on loan from the Rev. Justus P. Kretzmann, pastor of Atonement Lutheran Church, Florissant, who first went to Nigeria in 1939, shortly after his graduation from Concordia Theological Seminary. He served there for 12 years, returning in 1951 to take his present pastorate in Florissant. Other items in the exhibit are on loan from a present missionary to Nigeria, the Rev. Paul M. Volz.

The most striking feature of the display is a simulated jungle scene, with artificial palm trees, elephant grass and hanging vines. There are also masks worn by the natives in their secret rituals and a 12½-foot long python skin.

A novelty item is a Nigerian toothbrush which natives say is twice as effective as anything Americans use.

The Nigerian display will be on view for about six weeks.

TRANSCRIPT OF SECOND NIXON-KENNEDY RADIO-TV DEBATE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP)

The following is an unofficial transcript of the panel debate last night between Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Republican, and United States Senator John F. Kennedy, Democratic, the two presidential candidates.

PAUL NIVEN (Columbia Broadcasting System): Mr. Vice President, Senator Kennedy said last night that the administration should take responsibility for the loss of Cuba. Would you compare the validity of that statement with the validity of your own statements in previous campaigns that the Truman Administration was responsible for the loss of China to the Communists?

NIXON: First of all, I don't agree with Senator Kennedy that Cuba is lost and certainly China was lost when this administration came into power in 1953. As I look at Cuba today I believe that we are following the right course, a course which is difficult but a course which under the circumstances is the only proper one which will see that the Cuban people get a chance to realize their aspirations of progress through freedom and that they get that with our co-operation with the other states in the Organization of American States.

Now, Senator Kennedy has made some very strong criticisms of my part or alleged part in what has happened in Cuba. He points to the fact that I visited Cuba while Mr. Batista was in power there.

Glad for Comparison.

I can only point out that if we are going to judge the administrations in terms of our attitude toward dictators we are glad to have a comparison with the previous administration. There were 11 dictators in South America and in Central America when we came in in 1953. Today there are only three left, including the one in Cuba. We think that is pretty good progress.

Senator Kennedy also indicated with regard to Cuba that he thought I had made a mistake when I was in Cuba in not calling for free elections at that time.

Now, I am very surprised that Senator Kennedy, who is on the Foreign Relations Committee, would have made a statement of this kind.

As a matter of fact, in his book, the Strategy for Peace, he took the right position, and that position is that the United States has a treaty, a treaty with all of the Organization of American States which prohibits us from interfering in the internal affairs of any other state and prohibits them as well. For me to have made such a statement would have been in direct opposition to that treaty.

Now, with regard to Cuba let me make one thing very clear. There isn't any question but that we will defend our rights there.

There isn't any question but that the freedom of Cuba, the people who want to be free, are going to be supported, and that they will attain their freedom. Now, Cuba is not lost, and I don't think this kind of defeatist talk by Senator Kennedy helps the situation one bit.

MODERATOR FRANK McGEE (National Broadcasting Co.): Senator Kennedy, would you care to comment?

KENNEDY: In the first place, I never suggested that Cuba was lost, except for the part in my speech last night where I indicated that I thought Cuba one day again would be free.

Where I have been critical of the Administration's policy and where I criticize Mr. Nixon was because in his press conference in Havana in 1955 he praised the competence and stability of the Batista dictatorship. That dictatorship killed over 20,000 Cubans in seven years.

Cites Criticism.

Secondly, I did not criticize him for not calling for free elections, but what I criticized was the failure of the Administration to use its great influence to persuade the Cuban government to hold free elections, particularly in 1957 and 1958. Thirdly Arthur Gardner, a Republican ambassador, Earl Smith, a Republican ambassador, both have indicated in the past six weeks that they reported to Washington that Castro was a Marxist, that Raoul Castro was a Communist, and that they got no effective result. Instead our aid continued to Batista which was ineffective. We never were on the side of freedom.

We never used our influence when we could have used it most effectively and today Cuba is lost to freedom. I hope some day it will rise, but I don't think it will rise if we continue the same policy toward Cuba that we did in recent years, and in fact toward all of Latin America. We almost ignored the needs of Latin America, beaming not a single Voice of America program in Spanish to all of Latin America in the last eight years, except for the three months of the Hungarian revolution.

MORGAN: Senator, last May in Oregon you discussed the possibilities of sending apologies or regrets to Khrushchev over the U-2 incident. Do you think now that that would have done any good, did you think so then?

KENNEDY: Mr. Morgan, I suggested that if the United States felt it could save the summit conference, it would have been important for us to have expressed regrets. In my judgment that statement has been distorted by Mr. Nixon and others in their debates around the country and in their discussions.

Urged U-2 Regrets.

Mr. Lodge on "Meet the Press" stated if there was ever a question when we did not have law on our side it was in the U-2 incident. The flights were proper from the point of view protecting our security but they were not in accordance with international law and I said that I felt that rather than tell the lie which we told, rather than indicate that the flights would continue—in fact, I believe Mr. Nixon himself said on May 15 that the flights would continue, even though Mr. Herter testfied before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that they had been cancelled as of May 12th.

It would have been far better if we had expressed regrets if that would have saved the summit, and if the summit is useful, and I believe it is.

The point that has been left out is the fact that we expressed regrets to Castro this winter—that we expressed regrets of the Eisenhower Administration—expressed regrets for a flight over Southern Russia in 1958. We expressed regrets for a flight over Eastern Germany under this Administration. The Soviet Union in 1955 expressed regrets to us over the Bering Sea incident. The Chinese Communists expressed regrets to us over a plane incident in 1956.

That is the accepted procedure between nations. In my judgment we should follow the advice of Theodore Roosevelt, be strong, maintain a strong position, but also speak softly. I believe that in those cases where international custom calls for the expression of a regret, if that would have kept the summit going, in my judgment it was a proper action.

Is Not Appeasement.

It is not appeasement, it is not soft. I believe we should be stronger than we now are. I believe we should have a stronger military force. I believe we should increase our strength all over the world, but I don't confuse words with strength, and in my judgment, if the summit was useful, if it would have brought us closer to peace, that rather than the lie that we told, which has been criticized by all responsible people afterward, it would have been far better for us to have followed the common diplomatic procedure of expressing regrets and then try to move on.

McGEE: Mr. Vice President.

NIXON: I think Senator Kennedy is wrong on three counts. First of all, he is wrong in thinking or even suggesting that Mr. Khrushchev might have continued the conference if we had expressed regrets. He knew these flights were going on long before and that wasn't the reason that he broke up the conference.

Second, he is wrong in the analogy that he makes. The United States is a strong country. Whenever we do anything that is wrong, we can express regret, but when the President of the United States is doing something that is right, something that is for the purpose of defending the security of this country against surprise attack, he can never express regret or apologize to anybody, including Mr. Khrushchev.

Now, in that connection, Senator Kennedy has criticized the President on the ground not only of not expressing regrets but because he allowed this flight to take place while the summit conference or immediately before the summit conference occurred. This seems to me a criticism that again is wrong on his part.

We all remember Pearl Harbor. We lost 3000 American lives. We cannot afford another Pearl Harbor, and I just want to make my position absolutely clear with regard to getting intelligence information.

I don't intend to see to it that the United States is ever in a position where while we are negotiating with the Soviet Union that we discontinue our intelligence effort, and I don't intend ever to express regret to Mr. Khrushchev or anybody else if I am doing something that has the support of Congress, and that is right for the purpose of protecting the security of the United States.

ALVIN SPIVAK (United Press International): Mr. Vice President, you have accused Senator Kennedy of avoiding the civil rights issue when he has been in the South and he accused you of the same thinge. With both North and South listening and watching, will you sum up your own intentions in the field of civil rights if you become president?

NIXON: My intentions in the field of civil rights have been spelled out in the Republican platform. I think we have to make progress first in the field of employment and there we would give statutory authority to the committee on Government contracts which is an effective way of getting real progress made in this area since, about one out of every three jobs is held by and is allotted by people who have Government contracts.

Certainly I think all of us agree that when anybody has a Government contract certainly the money that is spent under that contract ought to be disbursed equally without regard to the race or creed or color of the individual who is to be employed.

Second, in the field of schools, we believe that there should be a provision whereby the Federal Government would give assistance to those districts who do want to integrate their schools. That, of course, was rejected, as was the Government contract provision, by the special session of the Congress in which Mr. Kennedy was quite active.

Presidential Leadership.

And then, as far as other areas are concerned, I think that we have to look to presidential leadership. Now, when I speak of presidential leadership I refer, for example, to our attitude on the sit-in strikes. Here we have a situation which causes all of us concern, causes us concern because of the denial of the rights of people to the equality which we think belongs to everybody. I have talked to Negro mothers, I have heard them explain, try to explain, to tell their children how they can go into a store and buy a loaf of bread but then can't go into that store and sit at the counter and get a Coca-Cola. This is wrong and we have to do something about it.

So under the circumstances what do we do? Well, what we do is what the Attorney General of the United States did under the direction of the President, call in the owners of chain stores and get them to take action.

Now, there are other places where the executive can lead but let me just sum up by saying this, why do I talk every time I am in the South of civil rights? Not because I am preaching to the people of the South, because that isn't just a southern problem. It is a northern problem and it is a western problem. It is a problem for all of us.

I do it because it is the responsibility of leadership. I do it because we have to solve this problem together. I do it right at this time. Particularly because when we have Khrushchev in this country, a man who has enslaved millions, a man who has slaughtered thousands, we cannot continue to have a situation where he can point the finger at the United States of America and say that we are denying rights of our citizens, and so I say both the candidates and both the vice presidential candidates, I would hope as well, including Senator Johnson, should talk on this issue at every opportunity.

McGEE: Senator Kennedy.

Two Basic Questions.

KENNEDY: Well, Mr. Nixon hasn't discussed the two basic questions. What is going to be done and what will be his policy on implementing the Supreme Court decision of 1954? Giving aid to schools technically that are trying to carry out the decision is not the great question.

Secondly, what is he going to do to provide fair employment? He has not indicated his support of attempts to provide fair employment practices around the country so that everyone can get a job regardless of their race or color, nor has he indicated that he would support Title III, which would give the Attorney General additional powers to protect constitutional rights. These are the great questions.

Equality of education in school. About 2 per cent of our population of white people is illiterate, 10 per cent of our colored population, 60 to 70 per cent of our colored children do not finish high school. These are the questions in these areas that the North and the South, East and West are entitled to know.

What will be done to provide equality of education in all sections of the United States? Those are the questions on which the President must establish a moral tone, a moral leadership, and I can assure you that if I am elected President we will do so.

Query on Civil Rights.

HAROLD LEVY (Newsday): Senator, on the same subject in the past you have emphasized the President's responsibility as a moral leader as well as an executive on civil rights questions. What specifically might the next President do in the event of an occurrence such as Little Rock or the lunch-counter sit-ins?

KENNEDY: Let me say I think the President operates in a number of different levels. First, as a legislative leader and, as I just said, I believe that the passage of the so-called Title III which gives the Attorney General the power to protect constitutional rights in those cases where it is not possible for the person involved to bring the suit.

Secondly, as an executive leader. There have been only six causes brought by this Attorney General under the voting bill passed in 1957 and the voting bill passed in 1960. The right to vote is basic. I do not believe that his Administration has implemented those bills which represent the will of the majority of the Congress on two occasions, with vigor.

Thirdly, I don't believe that the Government Contracts Division has operated with vigor. Everyone who does business with the Government should have the opportunity to make sure that they do not practice discrimination in their hiring and that is in all sections of the United States.

And then, fourthly, as a moral leader. There is a very strong moral basis for this concept of equality before the law, not only equality before the law but also equality of opportunity. We are in a very difficult time. We need all the talent we can get. We sit on a conspicuous stage.

We are a goldfish bowl before the world. We have to practice what we preach. We set a very high standard for ourselves; Communists do not. They set a low standard of materialism.

We preach in the Declaration of Independence and in the Constitution, in the statements of our great leaders, we preach very high standards and if we are not going to be charged before the world with hypocrisy we have to meet those standards.

I believe the President of the United States should indicate that.

Now, lastly, I believe in the case of Little Rock, I would have hoped that for the President of the United States it would have been possible for him to indicate clearly the Supreme Court decision was going to be carried out. I would have hoped it would have been possible to use marshals to do so but evidently under the handling of the case it was not.

I would hope incidents like that would not happen. I think if the President is responsible, if he consults with those involved, if he makes it clear that the Supreme Court decision is going to be carried out in the way that the Supreme Court planned, with deliberate speed, then, in my judgment, providing he is behind the action, I believe we can make progress.

Now, the present Administration, the President never indicated what he thought of the 1954 decision. Unless the President speaks, then, of course, the country doesn't speak. Franklin Roosevelt said the presidency of the United States above all is a place of moral leadership and I believe in that great moral leadership. He should speak out on his views clearly.

NIXON: Senator Kennedy has expressed some high hopes in this field, hopes which I think all America would share who face the problems and want progress in this area, but let's not forget the people we select as Vice Presidents. As a Vice President he selected a man who had voted against most of these proposals and a man who opposes them at the present time. Let's look at what I did. I selected a man who stands with me in this field and who will talk with me and work with me on it.

Now, the Senator referred to the Committee on Government Contracts and yet that very committee, of which I am chairman, has been handicapped by the fact that they had not the adequate funds, we have not had adequate powers, we have not had adequate staff.

Now, in the special session of Congress and also in the session that preceded it, the Democratic Congress, in which there is a two-to-one Democratic majority, was asked by the President to give us the funds and give us the power to do a job and they did nothing at all. And in the special session, in which Senator Kennedy was calling the signals along with Senator Johnson, they turned it down and he himself voted against giving us powers, despite the fact that the bill had already been considered before, that it had already had hearings on, and the Congress already knew what it had before it.

Need More Than Hopes.

All that I can say is this, what we need here are not just high hopes. What we need is action.

And in the field of executive leadership, I can say that I believe it is essential that the President of the United States not only set the tone but he also must lead, he must act as he talks.

McGEE: Mr. Morgan with a question for the Vice President.

MORGAN: Mr. Vice President, in your speeches you emphasize that the United States is doing basically well in the cold war. Can you square that statement with a considerable mass of bypartisan reports and studies, including one prominently participated in by Gov. Rockefeller, which almost unanimously concludes that we are not doing nearly so well as we should?

NIXON: Mr. Morgan, no matter how well we are doing in the cold war we are not doing as well as we should, and that will always be the case as long as the Communists are on the international scene with the aggressive tendencies that they presently are following.

Now, as far as the present situation is concerned, I think it is time that we nail a few of these distortions about the United States that have been put out.

First of all, we hear that our prestige is at an all time low. Senator Kennedy has been hitting that point over and over again. I would just suggest that after Premier Khrushchev's performance in the United Nations, compared with President Eisenhower's eloquent speech, that at the present time the Communist prestige in the world is at an all time low and American prestige is at an all time high.

Now, that of course, is just one factor but it is a significant one when we look, for example at the votes on The Congo, we were on one side, they were on the other. What happened? There were 70 votes for our position and none for theirs.

Look at the votes in the United Nations over the past seven and a half years. That is a test of prestige. Every time the United States has been on one side and they have been on the other, our position has been sustained.

Now, looking to what we ought to do in the future in this cold war we have to recognize where it is being fought and then we have to develop programs to deal with it. It is being fought primarily in Asia, in Africa, and in Latin America. What do we need, what tools do we need to fit it?

Well, we need, for example, economic assistance, we need technical asistance, we need exchange, we need programs of diplomatic and other character which will be effective in that area.

Now, Senator Kennedy a moment ago referred to the fact that there was not an adequate Voice of America program for Latin America. I would like to point out that in the last six years the Democratic Congress, of which he has been a member, have cut $20,000,000 off the Voice of America programs. They also have cut four billion dollars off of future security in these last six years. They also cut two billion dollars off of defense. Now, when they talk about our record here it is well that they recognize that they have to stand up for their record as well.

So let me summarize by saying this: I am not satisfied with what we are doing in the cold war but because I believe we have to step up our activities and launch an offensive for the minds and hearts and souls of men. It must be an economic, it must be technological, above all it must be ideological, but we have got to get help from the Congress in order to do this.

McGEE: Senator Kennedy?

Says Nixon Is Wrong.

Kennedy: Of course Mr. Nixon is wholly inaccurate when he says the Congress has not provided more funds, in fact, than the President recommended for national defense. In 1954 we tried to put appropriations of five billion dollars for our defense. I was responsible for the amendment with Sen. Monroney, in 1954, to strengthen our ground forces. The Congress of the United States appropriated $677,080,000 more than the President was willing to use up until a week ago.

Secondly, on the question of our position in the United Nations, we all know about the vote held this week of the five neutrals. It was generally regarded as a defeat for the United States.

Thirdly, in 1952 there were only seven votes in favor of admission of Red China into the United Nations; last year there were 29 and tomorrow when the preliminary voting is held you will see a strengthening of that position or very closely to it.

We have not maintained our position. The Gallup poll taken in February of this year, in eight out of nine countries they asked the people who do they think will be the leader in 1970 militarily and scientifically and a majority in eight of the nine countries said the Soviet Union by 1970.

Gov. Rockefeller has been far more critical, in June, of our position in the world than I have been. The Rockefeller brothers report, Gen. Ridgway, Gen. Gavin, the Gaither report, the various reports of congressional committees all indicate the relative strength of the United States, both militarily, politically, psychologically and scientifically and industrially, the relative strengths of the United States compared to that of the Soviet Union and the Chinese Communists together has deteriorated in the last eight years and we should know it and the American people should be told the facts.

SPIVAK: Senator, following this up, how would you go about increasing the prestige which we have been losing and the programs which you have devised and to do so without absolutely wrecking our economy?

KENNEDY: The program that was put forward this summer, after we broke off the sugar quota with Cuba, was really done because we wanted to pass through the OAS meeting a condemnation of the Russian infiltration of Cuba, and therefore we passed authorization, not an aid bill, which was the first time really since the Inter-American Bank which was founded a year ago was developed, that we really have looked at the needs of Latin America, that we have associated ourselves with those people.

Secondly, I believe that it is far better for the United States instead of concentrating our aid, particularly in the underdeveloped world on surplus military equipment, we poured $300,000,000 of surplus military equipment into Laos.

We paid for more military aid, more aid in the Laos than in any country in the world and we know that the Laos is moving from neutralism in the direction of the Communists.

I believe instead of doing that we should concentrate our aid in long term loans which these people can pay back, either in hard money or in local currency. This permits them to maintain their self respect, it permits us to make sure that the projects which are invested in are going to produce greater wealth, and I believe in the cases of India and Africa and Latin America, this is where our emphasis should be.

We tried to provide appropriations of a billion and a half for five years on a long term basis, which this administration opposed.

Unless we are ready to carry out programs like that, this battle for economic survival which these people are waging is going to be lost and if India should lose her battle—35 percent of the people of the underdeveloped lands within her borders—then I believe that the balance of power can move against us.

U.S. Can Afford Programs.

I think the United States can afford to do these things. I think we can not afford not to do these things. This goes to our survival and here in a country which if it is moving ahead, if it is developing its economy to the fullest, which we are not now, in my judgment we will have the resources to meet our military commitments and also our commitments overseas.

I believe it is essential that we do it because in the next 10 years the balance of power is going to begin to move in the world from one direction or another, towards us or towards the Communists and unless we begin to identify ourselves not only with the anti-Communist fight but also with the fight against poverty and hunger, these people are going to begin to turn to the Communists as an example. I believe we can do it. If we build our economy the way we should we can afford to do these things and we must do it.

McGEE: Mr. Vice President?

NIXON: Senator Kennedy has put a great deal of stress on the necessity for economic assistance. This is important but it is also tremendously important to bear in mind that when you pour in money without pouring in technical assistance as well that you have a disastrous situation. We need to step up exchange, we need to step up technical assistance so that trained people in these newly developing countries can operate.

We also have to have in mind something else with regard to this whole situation in the world and that is that as America moves forward we not only must think in terms of fighting communism but we must also think primarily in terms of the interests of these countries.

We must associate ourselves with their aspirations, we must let them know that the great American ideals of independence, of the right of people to be free, of the right to progress, that these are ideals that they desire, that belong not to ourselves alone but belong to everybody.

This we must get across to the world and we cannot do it unless we do have adequate funds for, for example, information, which has been cut by the Congress, adequate funds for technical assistance.

Must Stand for Ideals.

The other point that I would make with regard to economic assistance and technical assistance is that the United States must not rest its case here alone. This is primarily in ideological battle, a battle for the minds and the hearts and the souls of men. We must not meet the Communist merely in the field of eight years growth, we must stand for ideals.

LEVY: Mr. Vice President, the Labor Department today added five mor major industrial centers to the list of areas with substantial unemployment. You said in New York this week that as President you would use the full powers of government if necessary to combat unemployment. Specifically, what measures would you advocate and at what point?

NIXON: To combat unemployment we first must concentrate on the very areas to which you referred, the so-called depressed areas.

Now, in the last Congress, the special session of Congress, there was a bill, one by the President, and one by Senator Kennedy and members of his party. Now, the bill that the President has submitted would have provided more aid for those areas that really need it, areas like Scranton and Wilkes Barre and areas of West Virginia, than the one that Senator Kennedy was supporting.

On the other hand, we found that the bill had gotten into legislative difficulties and consequently no action was taken.

So, point one, at the highest priority we must get a bill for depressed areas through the next Congress. I have made recommendations on that and I have discussed them previously and I will spell them out further in the campaign.

Second, as we consider this problem of unemployment we have to realize where it is and in analyzing the figures we will find that our unemployment exists among the older citizens, it exists also among those who are inadequately trained, that is, those who do not have an adequate opportunity for education.

It also exists among minority groups. If we are going to combat unemployment then we have to do a better job in these areas. That is why I have a program for education, a program in the case of equal job opportunities and one that would also deal with our older citizens.

Now, finally, with regard to the whole problem of combating recession, as you call it, we must use the full resources of the Government in these respects.

One, we must see to it that credit is expanded as we go into any recessionary period. Understand I do not believe we are going into a recession, I believe this economy is sound and that we are going to move up.

But, second, in addition to that, if we do get into a recessionary period we should move on that part of the economy which is represented by the private sectors and stimulate that part of the economy that can create jobs, the private sector of the economy.

That means through tax removal and, if necessary, tax cuts that will stimulate more jobs. I favor that rather than massive federal spending programs which will come into effect usually long after you have passed through the recessionary period. We must use all of these weapons for the purpose of combating recession, if it should come, but I do not expect it to come.

McGEE: Senator Kennedy.

KENNEDY: Well, Mr. Nixon has stated the record inaccurately in regard to the depressed area bill. I am very familiar with it. It came out of the committee of which I was the chairman, the Labor Subcommittee in 1955. I was the floor manager. We passed an area redevelopment bill far more effective than the bill the Administration suggested on two occasions. And the President vetoed it both times. We passed a bill again this year in the Senate and it died in the Rules Committee of the House of Representatives.

Let me make it very clear that the bill that Mr. Nixon talks about did not mention Wilkes Barre and Scranton, and it did not mention West Virginia. Our bill was far more effective. The bill introduced and sponsored by Senator Douglas was far more effective in trying to stimulate the economy of those areas. Second, he has mentioned the problem of our older citizens. I cannot understand why this Administration and Mr. Nixon oppose putting medical ca for the aged under social security to give them some security.

More Surplus Food Use.

Third, I believe we should step up the use of our surplus foods in these areas for those people who are getting five cents a day worth as a food package. I believe we should stimulate the economy. I believe we should not carry out a hard money high interest rate policy which helped intensify certainly the recession of 1958, and I think helped bring the slowdown of 1960.

If we move into a recession in 1961 then I would agree we have to put more money into the economy, and it can be done by either one of the two methods discussed; one is by programs such as aid to education, the other would be to make a judgment of what is the most effective tax program to stimulate the economy.

McGEE: Mr. Niven, a question for the Senator.

NIVEN: Senator, while the main theme for your campaign has been the decline of American power and prestige in the last eight years, you have hardly criticized President Eisenhower at all. In a speech last weekend, you said you had no quarrel with the President. Now come, isn't Mr. Eisenhower and not Mr. Nixon responsible for any such decline?

KENNEDY: Well, I understood that this was the Eisenhower - Nixon Administration according to all the Republican propaganda that I have read.

The question is what we are going to do in the future; I have been critical of this administration, and I have been critical of the President. In fact, Mr. Nixon discussed that a week ago in his speech. I believe that our power and prestige in the last eight years has declined. Now the issue is what we are going to do in the future, and that is an issue between Mr. Nixon and myself.

He feels that we are moving ahead; that we are not going into a recession in this country economically.

He feels that our power and prestige is stronger than it ever was relative to the Communists, that we are moving ahead. I disagree. I believe the American people have to make the choice on Nov. 8 between the view of whether we have to move ahead faster and what we are doing now is not satisfacctory, whether we have to build greater strength at home and abroad, and Mr. Nixon's views. That is the great issue.

President Eisenhower moves from this scene on Jan. 20, and the next four years will be the critical years, and that is the debate, that is the argument between Mr. Nixon and myself, and on that issue the American people have to make their judgment, and I think it is an important judgment.

I think in many ways this election is more important than any since 1932, or possibly in this century, because we disagree very fundamentally on the position of the United States.

If his view prevails, then I think that that is going to bring an important result in this country in the sixties.

If our view prevails, that we have to do more, that we have to make a greater national and international effort, that we have lost prestige in Latin America—the President of Brazil, the new incumbent running for office, called on Castro during the campaign because he thought it was important to get the vote of those who support Castro in Latin America. In Africa—the United States has ignored Africa. We gave more scholarships to The Congo this summer than we have given to all Africa the year before. Less than 200 for all the countries of Africa, and they need trained leadership more than anything.

We have been having a very clear decision in the last eight years. Mr. Nixon has been part of that Administration, he has had experience in it, and I believe this Administration has not met its responsibilities in the last eight years, that our power relative to that of the Communists is declining, that we are facing a very hazardous time in the sixties, and unless the United States begins to move here, unless we start to go ahead, I don't believe that we are going to meet our responsibilities to our own people or to the cause of freedom.

I think the choice is clear, and involves the future.

McGEE: Mr. Vice President.

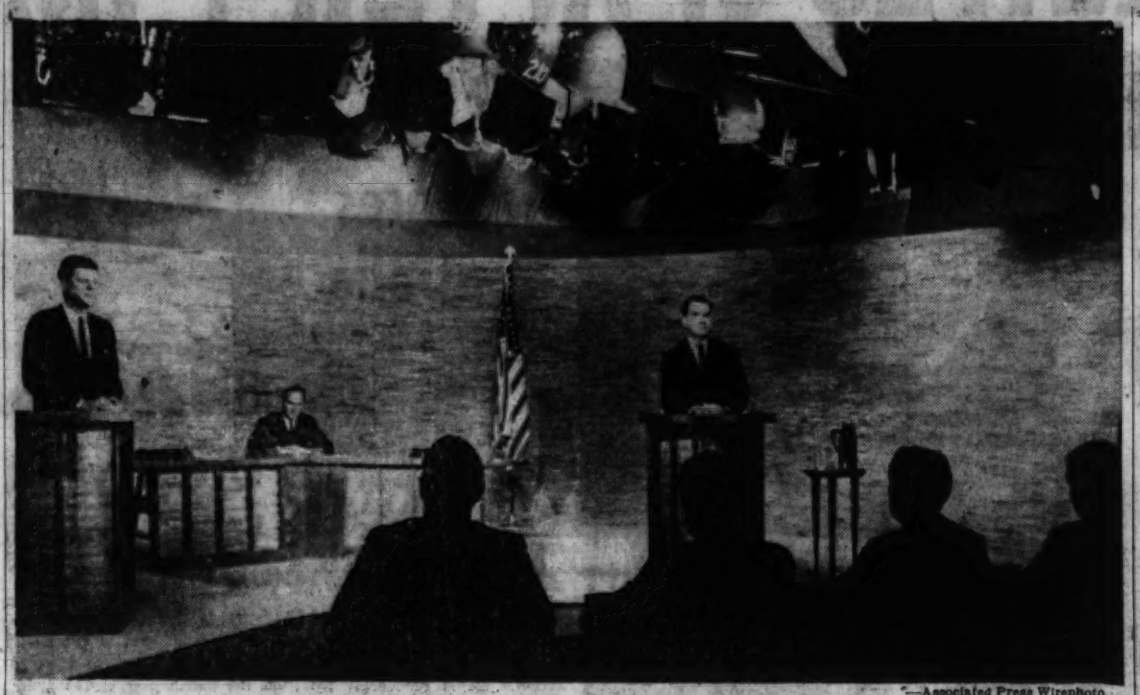

NIXON: First of all, I think Senator Kennedy should make up his mind with regard to my responsibilities. In our first debate, he indicated that I had not had experience or at least had not participated significantly in the making or the decisions. I am glad to hear tonight that he does suggest that I have had some experience.

Proud of Administration.

Let me make my position clear. I have participated in the discussions leading to the decisions in this Administration. I am proud of the record of this Administration. I don't stand on it because it isn't something to stand on, but something to build on.

Now, looking at Senator Kennedy's credentials, he is suggesting that he will move America faster and further than I will, but what does he offer? He offers retreads or programs that failed.

I submit to you that if you look at his program, his program for example with regard to the Federal Reserve and free money or loose money, high or low interest rates, his programs in the economic field generally are the programs that were adopted and tried during the Truman Administration, and when we compare the economic progress of this country in the Truman administration with that of the Eisenhower Administration we find that in every index there has been a great deal more performance and more progress in this Administration than in that one.

I say the programs and the leadership that failed then is not the program and the leadership that America needs now.

I say that American people don't want to go back to those policies and, incidentally, if Senator Kennedy disagrees he should indicate where he believes those policies are different from those he is advocating today.

SPIVAK: Mr. Vice President, according to news dispatches, Soviet Premier Khrushchev said today that Prime Minister Macmillan had assured him that there would be a summit conference next year after the presidential elections. Have you given any cause for such assurance and do you consider it desirable or even possible that there would be a summit conference next year if Mr. Khrushchev persists in the conditions he has laid down?

NIXON: No, of course, I haven't talked to Prime Minister Macmillan. It would not be appropriate for me to do so. The President is still going to be President for the next four months, and he of course is the only one who can commit this country in this period.

As far as the summit conference is concerned, I want to make my position absolutely clear. I would be willing as President to meet with Mr. Khrushchev or any other world leader if it would aid the cause of world peace. I would not be willing to meet with him, however, unless there were preparations for that conference, which would give us some reasonable certainty, some reasonable certainty that you would be going to have some success.

We must not build up the hopes of the world and then dash them, as was the case in Paris. There Mr. Khrushchev came to that conference determined to break it up. He was going to break it up because he knew that he wasn't going to get his way on Berlin and on the other key matters with which he was concerned at the Paris conference.

Now, if we are going to have another summit conference, there must be negotiations at the diplomatic level, the ambassadors, the secretaries of state, and others at that level, prior to that time, which will delineate the issues and which will prepare the way for the heads of state to meet and make some progress.

Caution on Summit.

Otherwise if we find the heads of state meeting and not making progress, we will find that the cause of peace will have been hurt rather than helped. So under these circumstances, I, therefore, strongly urge and I will strongly hold, if I have the opportunity to urge or to hold, to this position that any summit conference would be gone into only after the most careful preparation and only after Mr. Khrushchev, after his disgraceful conduct at Paris, after his disgraceful conduct at the United Nations, gave some assurance that he really wanted to sit down and talk and to accomplish something and not just to make propaganda.

McGEE: Senator Kennedy:

KENNEDY: I have no disagreement with the Vice President's position on that. My view is the same as his. Let me say there is only one point I would add, that before we go into the summit, before we ever meet again, I think it is important that the United States build its strength, build its military strength as well as its economic strength. If we negotiate from a position where the power balance is moving away from us, it is extremely difficult to meet a situation, to meet a situation on Berlin as well as other things.

Now, the next President in the first year is going to be faced with a very serious situation with our defense of Berlin, our commitment on Berlin, it is going to be a test of our nerve and will. It is going to be a test of our strength and because we are going to move in 1961 and 1962 partly because we have not maintained our strength with sufficient vigor in the last years, I believe that before we meet that crisis that the next President of the United States should send a message to Congress asking for revitalization of our military strength, because come spring or late in the winter we are going to be face to face with the most serious Berlin crisis since 1949 or 1950.

On the question of the summit, I agree with the position of Mr. Nixon. I will not meet Mr. Khrushchev unless there were some agreement at the secondary level, foreign ministers or ambassadors, that would indicate that the meeting will have some hope of success or useful exchange of ideas.

LEVY: In your acceptance speech at Los Angeles, you said that your campaign would be based not on what you intend to offer the American people but what you intend to ask of them. Since that time you have spelled out many of the things that you intend to do, but you have made only vague reference to sacrifice and self-denial. A year or so ago, I believe you said that you would not hesitate to recommend a tax increase if you considered it necessary. Is that what you have mind?

KENNEDY: Well, I don't think that in the winter of 1961 under present economic conditions a tax increase would be desirable. In fact, it would be deflationary. It would cause great unemployment, because of a real slowdown in our economy.

If it ever becomes necessary and is wise, economically essential to our security, I would have no hesitancy in suggesting a tax increase or any other policy which would defend the United States. I have talked in every speech about the fact that there are going to be very difficult times in the 1960s, and if necessary we will have to meet our responsibility as citizens.

I am talking about a national mood, I am talking about our willingness to bear any burden in order to maintain our own freedom, and in order to meet our freedom around the globe. We don't know what the future is going to bring, but I would not want anyone to elect me as President of the United States, or vote for me, under the expectation that life would be easier if I were elected.

Now, many of the programs that I am talking about, economic growth, care for the aged, development of our national resources build the strength of the United States. That is how the United States began to prepare for its great actions in World War II and in the postwar period. If we are moving ahead, if we are providing a vital economy, if our people have sufficient resources so that they can consume what we produce, then this country is on the move, then we are stronger, then we set a better example to the world.

We have the problem not only of building our own military strength and extending our policies abroad; we have to do a job here at home.

So I believe that the policies that I recommend come under the general heading of strengthening the United States.

Cites Steel Consumption.

We are using our steel capacity 55 per cent today. We are not able to consume what we are able to produce at a time when the Soviet Union is making great economic gains, and all I say is I don't know what the 60s will bring, except I think they will bring hard times in the international sphere.

I hope we can move ahead here at home in the United States. I am confident we can do a far better job of mobilizing our economies and resources in the United States, and I merely say that if they elect me president, I will do my best to carry the United States through a difficult period, but I would not want people to elect me because I promise them the easy soft life. I think it is going to be difficult, but I am confident that this country can meet its responsibilities.

McGEE: Mr. Vice President?

NIXON: Well, I think we should be under no illusions whatever about what the responsibilities of the American people will be in the 60's our expenditures for defense, our expenditures for future security, our expenditures for economic assistance and technical assistance are not going to get less in my opinion. They are going to be greater.

May Need More Taxes.

I think it may be necessary that we have more taxes. I hope not.

I hope we can economize elsewhere, so that we don't have to, but I would have no hesitation to ask the American people to pay the taxes even in 1961 if necessary to maintain a sound economy and also to maintain a sound dollar, because when you do not tax and tax enough to pay for your outgo, you pay it many times over in higher prices, in inflation, and I simply will not do that.

I think I should also add that as far as Senator Kennedy's proposals are concerned, if he intends to carry out his platform, the one adopted in Los Angeles, it is just impossible for him to make good on those promises without raising taxes, or without having a rise in prices, or both.

The platform suggests that it can be done through economic growth, that it be done in effect with mirrors, but it isn't going to be working that way. You can't add billions of dollars to our expenditures and not pay for it. After all, it isn't paid for by my money or by his, but by the people's money.

NIVEN: Mr. Vice President, you have said that while Mr. Khrushchev is here Senator Kennedy should talk about what is right with this country as well as what is wrong with the country. In the 1952 campaign when you were Republican candidate for Vice President and we were at war with the Communists, did you feel a similar responsibility to talk about what was right for the country?

NIXON: I did, and as I pointed out in 1952, I made it very clear that as far as the Korean War was concerned that I felt that the decision to go into the war was right and necessary. What I criticized were the policies that made it necessary to go into Korea. Now, incidentally, I should point out here that Senator Kennedy has attacked our foreign policy. He said that it has been a policy that has led to defeat and retreat, and I would like to know where have we been defeated, where have we retreated.

In the Truman Administration, 600,000,000 people went behind the Iron Curtain, including the satellite countries of Eastern Europe and Communist China. In this Administration we have stopped them at Quemoy and Matsu. We have stopped them in Indo-China, we have stopped them in Lebanon. We have stopped them in other parts of the world.

Right to Criticize.

I would also like to point out that as far as Senator Kennedy's comments are concerned, I think he has a perfect right and a responsibility to criticize this Administration whenever he thinks we are wrong, but he has a responsibility to be accurate and not to mistate the case.

I don't think he should say that our prestige is at an all-time low. I think this is very harmful at a time Mr. Khrushchev is here, harmful because it is wrong. I don't think it was helpful when he suggested —and I am glad he has corrected this to an extent—that 17,000,000 people go to bed hungry every night in the United States.

Now, that just wasn't true. Now, there are people who go to bed hungry in the United States; far less incidentally than used to go to bed hungry when we came into power at the end of the Truman Administration, but the thing that is right about the United States, it should be emphasized is that less people go to bed hungry in the United States than in any major country in the world. We are the best fed, we are the best clothed, with a better distribution of the world's goods to our people than any people in history.

Now, in pointing out the things that are wrong, I think we ought to emphasize America's strength. It isn't necessary to run America down in order to build her up. Now, just so we get it absolutely clear, Senator Kennedy must as a candidate as I did as a candidate in 1952, criticize us when we are wrong and he is doing a very effective job of that in his way. But on the other hand, he has a responsibility to be accurate, and I have a responsibility to correct him every time he misstates the case, and I intend to continue to do so.

McGEE: Senator Kennedy?

Cites Aiken, Benson.

KENNEDY: Well, Mr. Nixon, I will just give you the testimony of Mr. George Aiken, Senator George Aiken, the ranking Republican member and former chairman of the Senate Agricultural Committee, testifying in 1959, said there were 26,000,000 Americans who did not have the income to afford a decent diet.

Mr. Benson, testifying on the food stamp campaign in 1957, said there were 25,000,000 people who could not afford an elementary low-cost diet, and he defined that as someone who uses beans in place of meat. I have seen a good many hundreds of thousands of people who are not adequately fed.

You can't tell me that a surplus food distribution of five cents person that nearly six million people are receiving is adequate. You can't tell me anyone who uses beans instead of meat in the United States, and there are 25,000,000 of them according to Mr. Benson, is well fed or adequately fed.

I believe that we should not compare what your figures may be to India or some other country that have serious problems, but remember that we are the most prosperous country in the world and that these people are not getting adequate food and they are not getting in many cases adequate shelter, and we ought to try to meet the problem.

Secondly, Mr. Nixon has continued to state, and he stated it last week, fantastic figures of what the Democratic budget platform would cost.

They are wholly inaccurate. I said last week I believe in a balanced budget, unless there was severe recession and, after all, the worst unbalanced budget in history was in 1958, 12 billion dollars, much larger than in any Administration in the history of the United States. So what I believe is, on this subject, we can balance the budget unless we have a national emergency, or unless we have a severe recession.

McGEE: Mr. Morgan with a question for Senator Kennedy.

MORGAN: Senator, Saturday on television you said that you had always thought that Quemoy and Matsu were unwise places to draw our defense lines in the Far East. Would you comment further on that, and also addressed to this question, can a pullback from those islands be interpreted as appeasement?

KENNEDY: Well, the United States has on occasions attempted, mostly in the middle 50's, to persuade Chiang Kai-shek to pull his troops back to Formosa. I believe strongly in the defense of Formosa. These islands are a few miles, five or six miles off the coast of Red China, within a general harbor area, and more than a hundred miles from Formosa. We have never said flatly that we would defend Quemoy and Matsu if attacked. We say we will defend it if it is part of an attack on Formosa, but it is extremely difficult to make that judgment.

Now, Mr. Herter, in 1958, when he was Under Secretary of State, said they were strategically indefensible, Adm. Spruance and Gen. Collins in 1955 said we should not attempt to defend these islands in a conflict in the Far East. Gen. Ridgway has said the same thing. I believe if you are going to get into a war for the defense of Formosa, it ought to be on a clearly defined line.

Backs Formosa Defense.

One of the problems I think at the time of South Korea was the question of whether the United States would defend it if it were attacked. I believe we should defend Formosa. We should come to its defense. To leave it in the air, that we will defend it under some conditions but not under others, I think is a mistake.

Secondly, I would not suggest the withdrawal at the point of the Communists' guns. It is a decision finally that the Nationalists should make. And I believe that we should consult with them and attempt to work out a plan by which the line is drawn at the island of Formosa. It leaves 100 miles between the sea, but when Gen. Ridgway, when Mr. Herter, Gen. Collins, Adm. Spruance, and many others—I think it is unwise to take the chance of being dragged into a war which may lead to a world war over two islands which are not strategically defensible, which are not, according to their testimony, essential to the defense of Formosa.

I think that we should protect our commitments, I believe strongly we should do so in Berlin. I believe strongly we should do so in Formosa, and I believe we should meet our commitments in every country whose security we have guaranteed, but I do not believe that this line in case of war should be drawn on those islands, but instead on the island of Formosa, and as long as they are not essential to the defense of Formosa, it has been my judgment ever since 1954, at the time of the Eisenhower doctrine for the Far East, that our lines should be drawn in the sea around the island itself.

McGEE: Mr. Vice President.

NIXON: I disagree completely with Senator Kennedy on this point. I remember in the period immediately before the Korean war, South Korea was supposed to be indefensible as well. The generals testified to that.

And Secretary Acheson made a very famous speech at the Press club early in the year that the Korean war started, indicating in effect that South Korea was beyond the defense zone of the United States. I suppose it was hopefully that he made the speech that we wouldn't get into a war, but it didn't mean that. We had to go in when they came in.

Now, I think as far as Quemoy and Matsu are concerned that the question is not the two little pieces of real estate. They are unimportant. It isn't the few people who live on them. They are not too important.

It is the principle involved. These two islands are in the area of freedom. The Nationalists have these two islands. We should not force our Nationalist allies to get off of them and give them to the Communists. If we do that, we start a chain of reaction, because the Communists aren't after Quemoy and Matsu. They are after Formosa.

And, in my opinion, this is the same kind of wooly thinking that led to disaster for America in Korea. I am against it. I would never tolerate it as President of the United States, and I will hope that Senator Kennedy will change his mind if he should be elected.

McGEE: Gentlemen, we have approximately four minutes remaining. May I ask you to make your questions and answers as brief as possible consistent with clarity. Mr. Levy has a question for Mr. Nixon.

LEVY: You have a slogan: Don't vote for the party, vote for the man. Senator Kennedy says that in doing that you are trying to run away from your party on such issues as housing and aid to education by advocating what he calls a me-too program.

Why do you say the party labels are not important?

NIXON: Because that is the way we elect a President in this country and that is the way we should. I am a student of history, as is Senator Kennedy incidentally, and I have found that in the history of this country we have had many great presidents. Some of them have been Democrats, some of them have been Republicans.

Party Label Unimportant.

The people someway have always understood that at a particular time a certain man was the one the country needed. Now, I believe that in an election when we are trying to determine who should lead the free world, not just America, as Senator Kennedy has already indicated, the most important election in our history, it isn't the label that he wears or that I wear that counts. It is what we are.

It is our whole life. It is what we stand for. It is what we believe and consequently I don't think it is enough to go before a Republican audience and say, "look, vote for me because I am a Republican."

"I don't think it is enough for Senator Kennedy to go before the audience on the Democratic side and say "vote for me because I am a Democrat." That isn't enough. What is involved here is the question of leadership for the whole free world.

Now, that means the best leadership. It may be Republican, it may be Democratic, but the people are the ones to determine it. The people have to make up their minds and I believe the people therefore should be asked to make up their minds not simply on the basis of vote the way your grandfather did, vote the way your mother did, I think the people should put America first, rather than party first.

Now as far as running away from my party is concerned, Senator Kennedy has said that we have no compassion for the poor, that we are against progress—the enemies of progress, is the term he used.

All that I can say is this: We do have programs in all of these fields, education, housing, defense, that will move America forward. They will move her faster and they will move her more surely than his program.

This is what I believe. I am sure he believes just as deeply that his will move that way. I would suggest, however, that in the interest of fairness that he could give me the benefit of also believing as he believes.

McGEE: Senator Kennedy.

KENNEDY: Well, let me say I do think that parties are important in that they tell something about the program and something about the man. Abraham Lincoln was the great President of all the people. But he was selected by his party because his party stood for something.

The Democratic party in this century has stood for something. It has stood for progress. It stood for considering the people's welfare. It has stood for a strong foreign policy and a strong national defense and as a result produced President Wilson, President Roosevelt and President Truman. The Republican party has produced McKinley and Harding, Coolidge, Dewey and Landon.

They do stand for something. They stand for a whole different approach to the problems facing this country at home and abroad. That is the importance of party. Finally, if it tells something about the record, Republicans in recent years, not only in the last 25 years but in the last eight years, have opposed housing, opposed care for the aged, opposed federal aid to education, opposed minimum wage and I think that record tells something.

McGEE: Thank you gentlemen. Neither the questions from the reporters nor the answers you heard from Senator John Kennedy or Vice President Richard Nixon were rehearsed. By agreement neither candidate made an opening statement or a closing summation. They further agreed that the clock alone would decide who would speak last and each has asked me to express his thanks to the networks and their affiliated stations.

Another program similar to this one will be presented Thursday, Oct. 13, and the final program will be presented Friday, Oct. 21.

We hope this series of radio and television programs will help you toward a fuller understanding of the issues facing our country today and that on election day, Nov. 8, you will vote for the candidate of your choice.

This is Frank McGee. Goodnight from Washington.

TV Debate

overflights and said it was common diplomatic procedure.

"My judgment," he said, "is that we should follow the advice of Theodore Roosevelt. Be strong, maintain a strong position, but also speak softly. I believe that in those cases where international custom calls for expression of regret, if that would have kept the summit conference going, in my judgment that was the proper action.

"It is not appeasement. It is not soft. I believe we should have a strong military force. I believe we should increase our strength all over the world, but I don't confuse words with strength."

Reply by Nixon.

Nixon, as he has done in almost every campaign speech, bitterly denounced this explanation. He said Kennedy was wrong on three points — that Khrushchev would not have continued the conference, that the analogies of the precedents were erroneous and that we need intelligence of the U-2 type to prevent another Pearl Harbor.

With a show of indignation he continued: "I don't intend ever to express regrets to Mr. Khrushchev or anybody else if I am doing something that has the support of Congress and that is right for the purpose of protecting the security of the United States."

The two candidates also completely disagreed about defense of Matsu and Quemoy, the offshore islands about 100 miles from Formosa. Kennedy repeated his year-old assertion that these islands are undefendable and that the National Chinese government should be persuaded to give them up—but not under Red Chinese guns—so that the Communists would be on notice that the United States would defend Formosa.

Nixon asserted the islands must be defended. He said they were "not two little pieces of real estate" but were "islands in the area of freedom." To give them up, he said, would start a chain reaction leading to a Communist attack on Formosa.

"This is the same kind of woolly thinking that led to the disaster for America in Korea. I am against it. I would never tolerate it as President of the United States, and I hope that Senator Kennedy will change his mind if he should be elected."

Disagreement Over Cuba.

There was also disagreement over Cuba, mostly over words. Nixon said Kennedy had told an audience in Cincinnati Thursday night that "Cuba was lost" because of the Eisenhower Administration.

"Cuba is not lost," he said, "and I don't think this kind of defeatist talk by Senator Kennedy helps the situation one bit."

The Senator quoted himself as saying that Cuba was lost for the present to freedom. He said he had indicated that Cuba would one day again be free.

"I hope some day it will rise," he added, "but I don't think it will rise if we continue the same policies toward Cuba that we did in recent years and, in fact, toward all of Latin America, when we have almost ignored the needs of Latin America."

Several questions from the panelists related to civil rights and the economic situation. The debaters were particularly vehement and personal during these interchanges.

Nixon said his intentions regarding civil rights were spelled out in the Republican platform. This document does not mention Negro sit-downs in commercial establishments. The Democratic platform upholds these demonstrations. Kennedy has challenged Nixon to give his views on the subject. Nixon said he would do what President Eisenhower had done in directing Attorney General William P. Rogers to "call in the owners of chain stores and get them to take action."

As a personal jab, Nixon said he hoped Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic vice-presidential candidate, would talk about civil rights at every opportunity.

Kennedy said that the President should exercise executive, legislative and moral leadership in this field. He called for enactment of Title Three, proposed as an amendment to the civil rights law, which would give the Attorney General the power to protect constitutional rights in those cases where it is not possible for the persons involved to bring a suit. This proposal has the vehement opposition of most southern Democratic members of Congress.

Eisenhower and Schools.

He noted that President Eisenhower had never indicated what he thought of the Supreme Court's decision in the school desegregation cases.

"Unless the President speaks," he observed, "then of course the country does not speak. I believe that on this great moral issue he should speak out and give his views clearly."

When a panelist asked Nixon what he would do to ease distress in the areas of substantial unemployment, the Vice President defended the Administration bill for relief of the economically depressed regions. This was rejected by Congress, which passed two Democratic bills the President vetoed.

Nixon said the "highest priority" should be given to a depressed areas bill in the new Congress. He promised to spell out the details of his own plan during the campaign. In the event of a recession, he would stimulate the private sector of the economy "through tax reforms and, if necessary, tax cuts that will stimulate more jobs."

Kennedy said Nixon had "stated the record inaccurately" regarding the bills considered by Congress. He said the relief should not carry out a hard money, high interest rate policy, which intensified the recession of 1958 and which is helping to bring the slowdown of 1960.

Both Foresee Sacrifice.

Both candidates agreed that the next years would call for some sacrifices by the American people and larger expenditures. Nixon argued that the promises of the Democratic platform could not be fulfilled without higher taxes, inflation or both. He used a favorite campaign oratorical flourish:

"You can't add billions of dollars to our expenditures and not pay for it. After all, it isn't paid for by my money, it isn't paid for by his (Kennedy's) money but by the people's money."

Kennedy retorted that Nixon's calculations of the Democratic platform costs "were wholly inaccurate" and that he believed in a balanced budget unless there was a severe recession. He pointed out that the worst unbalanced budget in history was 12 billion dollars in 1958.

Richardson Smashes Grand Slam in 6-Run Start for Americans

By Bob Broeg
Post-Dispatch Sports Editor

NEW YORK, OCt. 8—Bobby Richardson, light-hitting New York second baseman who had averaged only one home run every 363 times at bat, fouled off an attempted squeeze bunt, then unloaded a grand-slam homer in a six-run first inning today as the Yankees rocked the Pirates early in the third game of the World Series.

During a six-run inning in which the Yankees forced out Vinegar Bend Mizell, making his first series appearance, light-hitting Richardson, who batted only .252 and had just one homer in 150 American League games, walloped his grand-slam homer off Clem Labine, former Dodger relief star released earlier this year by Detroit.

Benefitting from the rousing start was Ed (Whitey) Ford, New York southpaw who extended his own record by starting a thirteenth time in World Series play.

Thirty-two-year-old Ford, 5-4 in Series competition, had a subpar 12-9 in the American League this year. Mizell, 14-8, was a sparkling 13-5 with the Pirates after they obtained him in a mid-May deal with the Cardinals.

The umpires were Jackowski (N.L.) plate, Chylak (A.L.) first base, Boggess (N.L.) second base, Stevens (A.L.) third base and Honochick (A.L.) and Landes (N.L.) foul lines.

The attendance was estimated at 68,000.

Before the third game, Manager Danny Murtaugh, 43 today, said Sunday's starter would be Vernon Law and, equally as positively, Casey Stengel said he also would open with a right-hander, Ralph. Terry, in the fourth game.

Boldly, Murtaugh further said he would use Lefty Harvey Haddix Monday and have Bob Friend available in the bullpen during the weekend.

"Pitcher Ted Williams.

The first ball was thrown out by a most distinguished hitter, Ted Williams, and the retiring Red Sox slugger's toss went farther than the first ball that was hit. Virdon, leading off for Pittsburgh, tapped the ball a few feet toward first and was thrown out by Ford.

Whitey had an easy inning as Groat bounced high to Richardson and Clemente swung out, Yankee fans applauding.

The Yankee rooters had more immediate encouragement in the New York first when Cerv punched a ground single to center and Mizell missed with his first three pitches to Maris, who then lined a full-count delivery hard and deep to Clemente.

Homer-hitting Mantle pounded a "1-1" pitch on the ground through the middle for a base hit, sending Cerv to third. The Yankees continued to hit 'em where they weren't, scoring the game's first run as Skowron also grounded one right over second base, not at all hit sharply. Mantle raced to third on the safety.

Vinegar Out Early.

When Mizell walked McDougald on four pitches, to fill the bases, Murtaugh came out and beckoned for Labine. A surprise choice in this situation. The game, it appeared, might hang in the balance.

Labine pitched well to Howard, but the Pirates now seemed snake-bit as, down two strikes, the Yankee catcher dribbled a slow run-scoring infield hit along the third-base line. And the bases were still loaded.

Richardson went from the ridiculous to the Sublime, or vice versa. After bunting foul, trying to squeeze in a run, the light-hitting Yankee second baseman, who hit only one homer the entire American League season, unloaded on a "3-2" hanging curve and lined it into the left-field stands for a grand-slam blow.

Six runs were in on the seventh grand-slam homer in series history and Yankee fans had a field day.

Kubek, master of the squibber, bounced one Mazeroski fielded behind second, too far away to throw out the Yankee shortstop, who had his seventh series hit. Ford, bunting, forced Kubek, Labine to Groat, but when Cerv, up for the second time, singled to left, Ford stopping at second, Murtaugh finally had enough of Labine.

Lefty Green, bombed in relief along with the ex-Dodger Thursday, took over and drew a roar of relief as he got Maris on a foul fly to Smith.

The stunned Pirates were easy for Ford in the second. Stuart was called out on just three pitches and both Cimoli and Smith flied to Chev in short left.

Mickey Out Stealing.

In the Yankee second Mantle lined a single to center and took second on a wild pitch. Skowron struck out on a "3-2" pitch that was high and too wide. Mantle, trying to catch Smith by surprise, tried to steal third, but the Pittsburgh catcher pegged him out. McDougald looked at a third strike.

Once more Pittsburgh was easy for Ford in the third. Hoak flied to Mantle, Ford worked fast to throw out Mazeroski on a roller tapped short of the mound and Green lined to Kubek, who backhanded the ball to his right, just off the ground.

New York, too, went down in order in the third. Howard flied to Cimoli. Richardson, missing another curve which hung like the one on which he homered, went down swinging. Kubek, his luck changing, tried to duck a pitch and accidently grounded it to Hoak.

Virdon Draws Cheer.

First up in the Pirate fourth, Virdon gave National League fans their first reason to cheer, doubling off the auxiliary scoreboard on the right-center field wall. The cheer didn't last, though, for Ford went to his right for a good play on Groat' roller, McDougald threw out Clemente and Maris ran down—and almost over-ran—Stuart's fly near the right field line.

Play-by-Play

The third game of the World Series, play-by-play:

FIRST INNING—PIRATES — Virdon tapped to Ford. Richardson threw out Groat. Clemente fanned.

YANKEES—Cerv singled over second. Maris flied to Clemente. Mantle singled through the box, Cerv going to third. Skowron singled to center, Cerv scoring, Mantle going to third. McDougald walked, filling the bases. Labine replaced Mizell on the mound for the Pirates. Howard beat out a slow roller down the third base line, Mantle scoring and the bases remained full. Richardson hit a 3-2 pitch into the left field stands for a home run, scoring Skowron, Howard and McDougald ahead of him. Kubek beat out a grounder to Mazeroski. Ford forced Kubek, Labine to Groat. Cerv singled to left. Ford stopping at second. Green replaced Labine. Maris fouled to Smith. SIX RUNS.

SECOND—PIRATES — Stuart was called out on strikes. Cimoli flied to Cerv. Smith flied to Cerv.

YANKEES—Mantle singled to center and went second on a wild pitch. Skowron flanned. On a run and hit play, McDougald missed the ball and Mantle was out trying to steal third, Smith to Hoak. McDougald struck out.

Pittsburgh, Chicago Get Basket Teams

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (UPI)—The National Basketball Association today joined professional sports' expansion program with the inclusion of Chicago and Pittsburgh as league members for the 1961-62 season.

The two franchises were approved by unanimous vote yesterday, increasing the N.B.A. to 10 clubs next season.

Chicago and Pittsburgh previously have been represented in pro basketball. The Chicago Stags were members of the N.B.A. for three seasons before leaving the league in 1950. The old Pittsburgh Iron Men played in the now defunct Basketball Association of America in 1946-47.

The N.B.A. granted formal approval of the new franchises after representatives of both cities "fulfilled all the conditions" required by the owners.

Hawks Seek Sixth Win Over Royals

By John J. Archibald

The Hawks, winners of five of their seven pre-season exhibition games with Cincinnati thus far, will take on the Royals at Kiel Auditorium tonight at 8:30. It will be the first appearance of the Hawks this season.

Coach Paul Seymour, who led the Syracuse Nationals last season, will be making his St. Louis debut as head man for the Hawks. The game is sponsored by the Junior League, but tickets may be purchase at all Hawks' agencies as well as at Kiel Auditorium at game time.

Oscar (Big O) Robertson, former All-America at Cincinnati University, will be one of the atractions. He has been a standout performer in the Royals' early games against the Hawks and Detroit Pistons.

Featuring the Hawks' attack, of course, will be the great front line of Bob Pettit, Cliff Hagan and Clyde Lovellette, who had a combined average of 71 points per game last season.

Schoendienst To Seek Job As Player

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 8 (UPI) — The Milwaukee Braves yesterday released veteran second baseman Red Schoendienst, a hero of two pennant celebrations here, to signal the start of a major rebuilding effort.

Schoendienst, 37, who overcame tuberculosis to get back in the Milwaukee lineup this season, turned down a job in the Braves' organization. He said he's still healthy enough and skillful enough to help some other major league club.

General manager John McHale said he figured the infielder would turn down a non-playing job, and that's why he was given his unconditional release.

"Now he's free to go with the club of his choice," Mc Hale said.

A's Sign 2 Hurlers For Farm System

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 8 (UPI)—The Kansas City Athletics announced today the signing of two 18-year-old pitchers for the American League team's farm system.

McGuire was signed for Albuquerque, N.M., of the Sophomore League.

Waters, an outstanding high school athlete in football, basketball, track and baseball, will report to Sanford of the Florida State League.

Buchholz, McKinley Triumph

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Oct. 8 (AP)—Second-seeded Earl Buchholz Jr. and fifth-seeded Chuck McKinley, both of St. Louis, gained the semifinals in the Racquet Club's Grass courts tournament yesterday. Play was switched to the hard-courts for one day because of rain.

Buchholz defeated Donald Dell of Bethesda, Md., 7-5, 7-5, and McKinley rallied to score a mild upset on fourth-seeded Ham Richardson of New York, 2-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Top seeded Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, rallied to defeat Crawford Henry of Atlanta, 2-6, 9-7, 6-2.

Ron Holmberg of Brooklyn (No. 3) defeated Gardner Malloy of Miami, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Eagles Are Favored to Beat Cards

St. Louis' football Cardinals, who gained an upset victory over the Los Angeles Rams in their first N.F.L. game away from home, will be trying for another tomorrow afternoon when they play the Eagles at Philadelphia.

The Eagles are seven-point favorites for the game that will start at 12:35 p.m. (St. Louis time) and will be televised on Channel 4.

Frank Ivy's Cards were that sort of underchoice when they won at Los Angeles, 43-21. But then, rated even for their home opener last week, they were defeated by the Eastern champion New York Giants, 35-14.

Clayton Team Victor.

C.B.C. and Roxana Breeze to Victories

By Bob Ruhl

Christian Brothers High seems to enjoy its role as a football spoiler this season, but the young and eager Cadets will have to smooth out some rough edges before tackling the team with the longest winning streak in Missouri next week.

Jefferson City Helias, with a 31-game string over the past three seasons, will be the Cadets' opponent next Friday night. Jack Kersting's charges tuned up for the Helias game with an impressive 42-12 victory over previously unbeaten Assumption last night.

"We made more mistakes against Assumption than we did against Ladue, but our running game was better tonight," Kersting said. The Cadets, now 4-1 for the season, ended Ladue's 18-game streak, 14-6, earlier this season.

In another game, Roxana boosted its record to 3-1 with a 39-13 victory over Highland in the Midwestern Conference. Larry Thomas scored on runs of 25 and 12 yards.

The Cadets wasted little time in putting a touchdown on the scoreboard. Early in the first quarter Mario Canziani fell on a fumble at the Assumption 30. Moments later southpaw Tom Gold passed to Carl Gentile for a 30-yard touchdown.

C.B.C. built up its lead to 14-0 at halftime, the second TD coming on quarterback Charlie Pullaro's pass to Jim Prow for 45 yards with two seconds left on the clock. Halfback Mike Johnson kicked six extra points for the game. Of his 13 attempts this season, he has missed just once and that one was blocked.

The Cadets tallied two more touchdowns in the third quarter. Gentile, a 150-pound junior and an outstanding soccer player, turned right end for 66 yards, and fullback Rick Jaudes, rated the Cadets' best runner, broke over the right side and dashed 51 yards into the end zone.

Johnson and Joe Gagliardi intercepted Assumption passes in the fourth quarter to set up scores. Johnson ended one drive with a two-yard plunge, and Tim Toolen smashed over from the 1 for the other score.

Charlie Stufflebean accounted for both Pioneer touchdowns. He threw 13 yards to Larry Roewe in the third quarter and 33 yards to Paul Keeney for the other.

Kersting admitted after the game that his team was up for the Pioneers. "Assumption was the first team we've met this season that beat us last year and the boys really wanted to win," he said. Helias beat the Cadets, 13-7, last season.

E. St. Louis Trounces Centralia

East St. Louis was "up" and Centralia went down, 32-0, in what was supposed to be one of the area's top-notch high school football attractions of the season at East St. Louis, last night.

The undefeated Flyers ran their victory string to 11, including four this season, and snapped an eight-game Centralia winning spree.

Centralia has lost but three times in its last 37 games and two of these defeats were by East St. Louis.

Art McCaskill, Centralia's sensational fullback, didn't get into action. He is recovering from a bruised right leg. McCaskill, the 170-pound whiz who has picked up 658 yards in 37 tries for a 17.8 average, was in uniform and hobbled up and down the sidelines.

Even a sound McCaskill would have had trouble doing much with East St. Louis's solid ground and spectacular air attack that netted 292 yards to 135 for Centralia.

Lynch First to Score.

East St. Louis fullback Henry Lynch scored the game's opening touchdown midway in the first quarter. With the ball on the Centralia 12-yard line, Lynch spun around four times as he went over the goal line. Bill Moder kicked the extra point.

Rufus Jones carried the ball over in four plays from the Centralia 25-yard line to make it 13-0 after five minutes of play in the second quarter. Jim Long, who lives up to his name when it comes to reaching high for passes, snared a 15-yard toss from Jim Basarich to make it 20-0 with ten seconds remaining in the second quarter.

East St. Louis scored once in the third quarter on Corny Perry's smash through the center from the one-foot marker and started a second touchdown march that clicked on the second play of the final period. Basarich was the scorer on a keeper play from the 11-yard line.

Centralia Threatens.

Centralia made one threat getting to the East St. Louis one-yard line late in the fourth period. However, the East St. Louis varsity returned to the field and stopped the attack in four plays to keep the visitors scoreless.

In another East Side feature, Alton's Jerry Goodman put on a four-touchdown, one-man show as he led his team to a 41-13 Southwestern Conference victory over Granite City.

Belleville scored in every quarter as it breezed past Wood River, 13-12, in Southwestern conference play on the winner's field. Collinsville marched along undefeated with a 26-6 victory over Edwardsville, holding the area's top scorer, Tony Penelton, to one touchdown. Fred Riddle scored three for the Kahoks.

Wieck, Richardson Tie in Senior Golf

Syl Wieck of Norwood Hills and Bob Richardson of Normandie each had 75 to tie for the over-all low gross honors in the St. Louis Seniors' Golf Association's championship tournament, yesterday at the Westwood Country Club. The two golfers will meet in a playoff match at a later date.

Dr. J. A. Virant of Norwood Hills had a 69 to win the over-all low net honors. Norwood Hills won the low net team honors with a 24 total.

A field of 134 golfers competed.

Blocked Punt Sends U. City on Way to Win Over Ferguson

By Bob Posen

And the Indians did just that on the fourth play of the game last night, Myron Kinberg speeding in from left end to turn Dennis McReynolds' kick into a U. City recovery on the Ferguson 13-yard line. Three plays later Joe Finch scooted three yards into the end zone, and the Indians were on their way to an impressive 27-6 victory in a Suburban Big Seven contest.

That put U. City, now 3-1 overall, up with Kirkwood (4-0) and the Indians' next opponent, Ritenour (3-0) as the leading teams in the league. Kirkwood drubbed Normandy, 33-0, last night.

"We were up for this one, for the first time since the Mattoon game," U. City Coach Stub Muhl said. The Indians lost to the Illinois team, 13-0, in their opener, then found themselves and rolled over St. Mary's 33-0, and McBride, 25-0.

The Indians third straight one-sided triumph was, in the words of Ferguson Coach Bob Johnson, a case of "a good big team beating a good little team. We just didn't have the size and couldn't handle them from tackle to tackle. We planned to pass a lot, but we could hardly get the ball away."

Quarterback Steve Ritchie finally did connect late in the game, hitting three straight passes totaling 46 yards to set up Clayton Beattie's one-yard touchdown run, but by that time U. City had a 27-0 lead.

Three minutes after Finch scored his team's first quick touchdown, the 135-pound halfback scored again from the four, after fullback Larry Fitzgerald had powered his way for 48 yards to the nine. Finch's run for the extra point made the score U. City 13, Ferguson 0, after six and one-half minutes of play.

The stunned Comets, who had won their first three games and had high hopes for this one, never got into the battle, trailing 20-0 after the Indians drove 60 yards for a second quarter TD.

A 32-yard interception return by Stuart Bradbury to the Ferguson three set up a fourth U. City TD, early in the fourth quarter.

Kirkwood also piled up a 20-0 halftime lead, as the Pioneers handed Normandy its third straight one-sided defeat. The Vikings, co-champions with Webster Groves (now 0-3) last year, were a pre-season favorite, but were crippled by key backfield injuries.

Goalby's 69 Leads in PGA Open Tourney

Belleville's Bob Goalby, winner of the St. Clair Open title last Sunday, had a three-under par 69 to take the lead in the Eastern Missouri PGA invitational golf tournament yesterday at the Normandie Golf Club.

The 1959 titleholder, Milon Marusic, Algonquin professional, tallied 70 for second place. Both Goalby and Marusic shot par 36s on the front nine. The St. Clair ace was three under par for the back nine and Marusic was two under with 34.

Jim Fogerty of Sunset and Clarke Morse of St. Clair had a 71 each. Jimmy Jackson, Greenbriar's outstanding amateur star, was one of five golfers with a 72 each. Since the changing of the No. 1 tee to the old No. 10, No. 9 green now being No. 18, par figures were also changed to 36-36-72. The tenth hole was lengthened to make it a par five.

The second 18-hole round takes place today with the low 51 players of the two-day totals competing in the final round tomorrow.

Miss Jet Age Wins

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 8 (AP) — Ralph Baldwin drove Miss Jet Age to victory over 15 rivals yesterday in the featured $6050 Clearview Trot at the Lexington Trots.

Cedar Crest Flash won the other elimination heat, but Cedar Crest Flash broke stride at the start of the final heat and Miss Jet Age led most of the way. She trotted the final mile in 2:03 2-5, with Worthy Nancy second.

Attendance Up.

Little Rock, Atlanta and Mobile showed attendance gains in baseball's Southern Association last season.

Wrestling Results

(At Kiel Auditorium.)

Fairmount Race Meet Ends Tonight; Two Handicaps to Feature

The $2500 Farewell Handicap will headline the final nine-race program at Fairmount tonight. The handicap will be contested at a mile and a sixteenth and a companion feature will be the track's juvenile handicap, a six-furlong event offering $1800 in purse money.

Six of the other races are named in honor of member groups of the Eleanor Roosevelt Cancer Research Foundation. All the proceeds from ticket sales, after taxes, will be donated to the Foundation.

Last night's program was bountiful for the track's leading jockeys. Belloin Pulido, the No. 1 rider, picked up three wins, scoring aboard Royal River ($6.20), in the second; Papa's Boy ($6.00) in the fifth and Fleet Eva ($18.60) in the seventh. He has 80 winners.

Ray Landing, a distant second in the battle for riding honors, booted in Sun 'N Fun ($3.20) in the fourth and Gray Dot ($5.40) in the sixth.

A crowd of 4829 wagered $255,677.

Congo Police Mutiny Over Pay; 20 Commissioners Are Arrested

LEOPOLDVILLE, Oct. 8 (UPI) — Congolese police, charging they had not been paid in weeks, mutinied today and arrested about 20 police commissioners.

Dozens of heavily armed policemen raided homes and offices of high-ranking police officials and whisked the commissioners off at pistol-point. They locked them up at the police camp on the outskirts of the city.

Reports said some of the police officers were beaten by their rebellious subordinates. The rebellion apparently was aimed at police officials who the lower ranks claimed got regular pay while they went without.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 8 (AP) — Forty Baluba tribesmen were killed in a clash with police as new tribal disorders erupted in remote northeastern Katanga province, the Brussels radio reported last night. The broadcast, quoting a Katanga Government spokesman, said the clash occurred when Katanga state police were clearing the Bukama airport area. Gendarmerie losses were put at three dead.

Nigeria Sending Battalion to U.N. Force in Congo.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 8 (AP)—Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold announced yesterday that Nigeria, newly admitted to the United Nations, will send a battalion to the U.N. forces in The Congo.

Maj. Gen. G. M. Foster, in command of the Nigerian army, will lead a reconnaissance party to Leopoldville Oct. 13. Nigeria will be the fourteenth country with troops in the force, which now consists of about 18,500 men.

BUS UNION HEAD OPPOSES TRANSIT CONTROL BY CITY

A union spokesman opposed Mayor Raymond R. Tucker's proposal for municipal ownership of transit companies, charging yesterday that the plan, as drafted, would adversely affect the rights and pensions of present transit employes.

John W. Rowland, president of Local 788 of the Bus and Streetcar Operators' Union, outlined the union's objections at a hearing on the Mayor's proposal before the Aldermanic Committee on Public Utilities at City Hall.

Rowland said the local, which represents Public Service Co. operating employes, objected to the proposal on the ground that no provision is made to recognize existing contractual obligations between the company and its workers.

Pointing out that under the proposal the area's mass transportation facilities would be controlled by a transit commission appointed by the Mayor, Rowland declared the commission would not be required to bargain and confer with the certified agents of the operating and maintenance employes.

No provision is made, he continued, to compel the commission to deal with the union on wages, hours and conditions of employment. Rowland contended the Mayor's proposal would give the commission the sole power to determine such matters, thus denying employes the right to strike.

Another objection was that the plan makes no provision for continuation of pensions now being paid to about 900 persons under the retirement system established by Public Service Co. many years ago.

"These members of the union worked for many years under union contract, and earned the pensions they are now receiving and do not wish any governmental agency to destroy their vested rights," Rowland declared.

"The union and its officers believe that any proposed ordinance should be very explicit in protecting the rights of presently pensioned employes of the company and those who are about to be, or who have accrued pension rights."

The union president also opposed the plan because, he said, the commission would not be required to hire persons who are now regular and permanent employes of Public Service Co. He said the local regards the proposal as a "direct denial of rights" granted by federal law, and a "usurpation" by the city of St. Louis of the union's right to be bargaining agent for the employes.

The union leader said the local is not opposed to public ownership if its functions are carried out by an agency which is well versed in mass transportation and recognizes the transit needs of the entire metropolitan area.

"We definitely feel that for the citizens of this area to be served properly, there should be one unified transportation system," he said.

Rowland pointed out that it has been proposed that the Bi-State Development Agency enter the mass transportation field, and added: "We feel that this is one agency that could possibly recognize all the problems involved . . . and accomplish this objective." He said mass transit should not be the responsibility and tax burden of St. Louis city alone, but of all municipalities served by a unified system.

KANSAS CITY MAN HEADS STATE G.O.P. FUND GROUP

Appointment of Lem Jones Sr., Kansas City candy manufacturer, as Republican state finance chairman, was announced yesterday by State G.O.P. Chairman H. Kenneth Wangelin.

Jones succeeds John H. Leaver of St. Louis, who resigned to become chairman of the Curtis-for-Congress Committee backing the re-election of Representative Thomas B. Curtis of Webster Groves. Leaver had served as finance chairman since September 1959.

The new finance committee head had been considered for the Republican nomination for United States Senator. Lon Hocker, St. Louis attorney, was selected as the nominee for the two-year unexpired term of the late Senator Thomas B. Hennings Jr.

POLICE SEEKING COMPANION OF WOMAN FOUND DEAD

A search was under way today for a man who was seen with Mrs. Augusta Shepherd, 42 years old, shortly before her beaten body was found in the bedroom of her apartment at 1813A Franklin avenue yesterday.

Neighbors said Mrs. Shepherd and the man had been drinking together in neighborhood taverns. The man was observed slapping her when they were on the back porch of her house yesterday and he then dragged her into the apartment.

Mrs. Shepherd, a widow, had been beaten about the head with a soda bottle and stabbed in the right shoulder with a pocket knife.

GETS 10 DAYS, $500 FINE FOR SALE OF STIMULANTS

Fleek A. Pippin, former operator of a motel, restaurant and filling station at Arnold, Jefferson county, was sentenced to 10 days in jail yesterday for illegal sale of stimulants. He also was fined $500.

The sentence was imposed by United States District Judge Roy W. Harper on a plea of guilty entered last Sept. 26. Judge Harper stayed the sentence for 30 days to allow Pippin to get his affairs in order.

Pippin was charged with three sales of di-amphetamine and sulfate tablets to an agent of the Pure Food and Drug Administration. The arrest was made in the Government's drive against persons selling stimulants to truck drivers.

12 DEAD, 62 MISSING IN PHILIPPINES STORM

MANILA, Oct. 8 (AP)—A typhoon which blew into the South China sea today left death and destruction in the Philippines.

Twelve persons were officially listed as dead. Sixty-two others were missing. Property damage estimates were in millions of dollars.

The Red Cross said 50,000 families were destitute in southern Luzon. Thousands more were affected in the Visayan islands. On the island of Samar half the homes in the northern section were reported badly damaged.

TWO RINGS WORTH $12,000 ARE STOLEN

Two rings valued at $12,000 were stolen yesterday from a third-floor apartment at 8344 Delmar boulevard, University City, occupied by John D. Meyer, an insurance broker, he reported to police.

Meyer said he and his wife were gone from their apartment most of the day yesterday. Other jewelry also was taken, he said, but nothing else was disturbed.

The stolen rings were described as a woman's platinum engagement ring with a five-carat diamond center stone and a platinum wedding ring set with diamonds.

Meyer said other jewelry missing included a pearl necklace valued at $60, and a ring with a pearl setting, a broach, a bracelet and a man's watch, all of unknown value.

The jewelry was taken from a case in Mrs. Meyer's dresser and the watch from Meyer's dresser.

University City police said they could find no evidence of forced entry.

The only indication that some one had been in the apartment was the fact that the rear door was found secured by a chain latch. Meyer, the last to leave yesterday morning, said he had left by that door.

NIGERIA PRIME MINISTER CONFERS WITH EISENHOWER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP)—President Eisenhower conferred for an hour today with the Prime Minister of Nigeria and was reported to be considering an invitation to visit the new republic.

Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, head of the new state, told reporters after the White House conference he had invited the President to visit his country. He said Mr. Eisenhower's response "indicates it might be possible. I hold some hope."

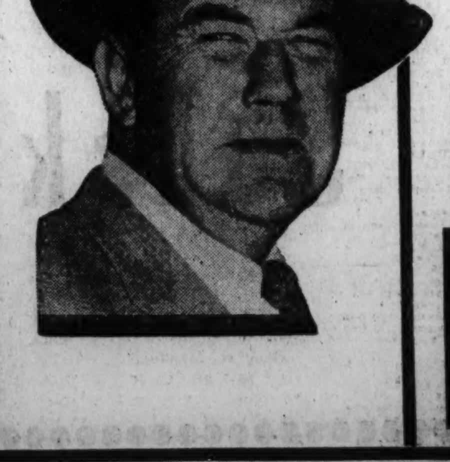

The Prime Minister said he asked Eisenhower many questions and was "most happy with the frank, honest answers." He declined otherwise to discuss their conservation.

Heavy Attack on Quemoy.

TAIPEI, Formosa, Oct. 8 (AP) —The Quemoy Islands were the target Friday night of 211 shells, the Chinese Nationalist defense ministry reported today. It was the heaviest attack by the Communists since June.

Khrushchev

. . . We are prepared to accept April.

"Furthermore, it would be a good thing if Europe were chosen as the place for this special session of the General Assembly . . . perhaps Geneva. . . . We should be more than happy to have the session either in Moscow or Leningrad."

Summit Question.

On the German issue, some diplomats considered Khrushchev was speaking in part for the ears of the two candidates for president of the United States.

"If you want me to give assurances that the status quo will be preserved without the reaching of an agreement to hold a summit conference," he said, "without the reaching of an agreement on the date of the conference—the month, or even the year—then I can give no such assurances.

"But if (it is understood) a summit conference must be held shortly after the elections in the United States, then I can say that we shall keep our word. But if we see that there is no desire to reach agreement, then those countries that understand the necessity of signing a peace treaty will assemble, a peace treaty will be signed, and that will mean the end of the occupation regime in West Berlin, also."

Khrushchev's statement that "Prime Minister Macmillan assured me that summit conference would take place" was denied by the British Foreign Office spokesman, John Russell. Russell said a new summit was implicit in conversations between Macmillan and Khrushchev, "but there was no such positive assurance by Mr. Macmillan as that here alleged."

Russell denied also a statement by Khrushchev that Macmillan wanted to delay disarmament for five or 10 years. The British Prime Minister told Khrushchev, Russell said, that disarmament controls would have to be stronger for the first five or 10 years than later.

On the German issue, Khrushchev said at his press conference that he had suggested to Macmillan an alternative to a summit conference to agree on a peace treaty, ending the occupation of Berlin.

"It might be better to convene a conference of all the competent countries in order to sign a peace treaty," Khrushchev said. He did not explain what he meant by "all the competent countries." He said he did not press the point when Macmillan "assured me that a summit conference would take place and that we should talk the matter over at that conference."

Khrushchev declared also the Soviet Union has accorded the provisional government of Algeria "de facto recognition."

"We wholeheartedly welcome their (the Algerians') struggle and we shall always give them the utmost aid possible, the aid that will be useful to them in attaining their freedom," he said.

LODGE, JOHNSON SAID TO REJECT TV ENCOUNTER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (UPI)—Major party vice-presidential candidates have rejected proposals that they confront each other on television, Dr. Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, said yesterday.

Stanton told luncheon guests that both Senator Lyndon B. Johnson and Henry Cabot Lodge had rejected the idea without explanation. There was speculation that the candidates felt they would be handicapped by reason of their special backgrounds, Lodge being identified primarily with international affairs and Johnson with domestic affairs.

CBS polling has revealed, Stanton said, that more people know about Lodge as a person than about any of the others, including the presidential nominees. He said he thought the polling was representative.

HUSBAND SUES, WON'T LET WIFE'S SLEEPING DOG LIE

HACKENSACK, N.J., Oct. 8 (AP)—Dr. Raphael Gilady, Bergen county medical examiner, filed suit yesterday to divorce his wife, Madelyne, charging that she insisted her Doberman Pinscher sleep in bed with them.

Gilady said in the suit his wife had more love for the dog than for him. He charged extreme cruelty.

Mrs. Gilady, the doctor's second wife, had earlier filed a suit for separate maintenance. She too charged extreme cruelty. They were married in 1958.

LONDON, Oct. 8 (AP)—Aleksandr Aleksandrovich Skochinsky, distinguished Russian mining engineer, died Thursday, Tass news agency said last night. He was 86 years old.

INITIAL UNEMPLOYMENT PAY CLAIMS UP 607 FOR WEEK

There were 2996 initial claims for unemployment compensation in St. Louis and St. Louis county in the week ended yesterday, an increase of 607 over the previour week, it was reported yesterday.

Continuing claims totaled 12,238, a decrease of 222 from the previous week a year ago.

Charles G. DeLargy, metropolitan manager for the Missouri Division of Employment Security, said the city-county figures generally followed the seasonal trends for late summer week's claims are above 1959 levels.

FRANCE SEEKS VETO ON ATOM ARMS USE

© New York Times News Service

PARIS, Oct. 8 — President De Gaulle announced yesterday that France intends to seek veto rights over any use of nuclear weapons by the West.

This position, which has long been the subject of semi-secret and inconclusive exchanges between Paris, Washington and London, was spelled out publicly for the first time by the French president in a speech at Grenoble.

"So far as her defense is concerned, France believes that defense has a national character," he told a crowd gathered outside the prefecture. "With respect to nuclear armament, she intends to have her own instrument."

"France intends that if, by misfortune, atomic bombs were to be dropped in the world, none should be dropped by the free world unless she (France) has accepted it, and that no atomic bomb should be launched from her soil unless she herself has decided it."

By the Associated Press.

De Gaulle's plan to arm France with a nuclear striking force passed in the National Assembly's finance committee yesterday, 18 to 17. It is expected to run into trouble in the Assembly itself.

The critics' view of the plan was summed up in the report of a finance committee study group set up to examine how to pay for the force.

While the cost estimates were warned that the plan risks making it impossible for France to meet other commitments in its various alliances.

$70 REPORTED STOLEN IN CONFECTIONERY HOLDUP

Mrs. Ada Williams reported she was robbed of $70 last night by two men who held her up in her confectionery at 4525 Morganford avenue. One man, armed with a knife, took the money from a cash register, she said.

Ike Robinson, 2414A North Spring avenue, reported he was held up when he stopped his automobile for a traffic light at Chouteau and Compton avenues, about midnight. He said a man opened the door of the car, pointed a pistol at him and took $132.

Coy A. Thompson, who lives at the Soldiers' Home at Quincy, Ill., awoke from a nap in the Union Station midway yesterday and discovered he had been robbed of $687 and a railroad ticket, he reported. Thompson was on his way to Fulton, Ky.

GETS FIVE-YEAR SENTENCE AS PROBATION IS REVOKED

Jake Walker, 17 years old, 4262 West Garfield avenue, yesterday was sentenced to serve five years in the penitentiary by Circuit Judge Theodore McMillian after the judge revoked his probation on three burglary and stealing charges.

Walker had pleaded guilty to the charges last February when he admitted he had stolen about $500 in merchandise from three appliance stores.

He was arrested again last August, and three additional burglary charges were filed against him. He pleaded guilty yesterday of stealing merchandise from three additional appliance stores before Circuit Judge James F. Nangle and was sentenced to five years on each of the three charges, to run concurrently with the sentence imposed by Judge McMillian.

20 TO 25 IN TV QUIZ SHOW INQUIRY ARE ACCUSED

NEW YORK, Oct. 8—A New York county grand jury has returned criminal informations for perjury against 20 to 25 contestants on two television quiz shows.

The district attorney's office said that since none of those accused has been arrested, it would be illegal to make their names public. Among those who, it is known, were questioned by the special television grand jury that returned the charges were Charles Van Doren, the former Columbia University instructor, Hank Bloomgarden, Vivian Nearing, who defeated Van Doren on the show "Twenty-One," and Elfrida Von Nardroff.

All those against whom the grand jury acted, it was learned yesterday, had appeared on "Twenty-One" or "Tic Tac Dough" and all were money winners.

MINE WORKERS AGAIN SHUN AFFILIATION WITH AFL-CIO

CINCINNATI, Oct. 8 (AP)—The United Mine Workers have again decided to keep their independence.

Delegates to the UMW convention pigeonholed a resolution yesterday aimed at affiliation with the AFL-CIO.

The miners have stood alone since John L. Lewis disagreed with other labor chieftains over the Taft-Hartley law.

Earlier in the convention yesterday Lewis—now union president emeritus—thundered his offer to resign as chairman of the union welfare and retirement fund if members were dissatisfied with his operation. The offer was resoundingly rejected by [illegible].

U.N. ODDS SHIFTING SLOWLY IN FAVOR OF RED CHINESE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 8 (AP)—For nine straight years the United Nations General Assembly has voted to shelve the question of seating Red China. But since 1952 the odds have been slowly shifting toward the Communists.

On the question of whether to postpone discussion of the Chinese representation issue for that session, here are the votes since 1951 and the percentage vote against Peiping.

1951: 37-11 with 4 abstentions or 77 per cent for shelving the issue for the year.

1952: 42-7 with 11 absentions; 85 per cent.

1953: 44-10 with 2 abstentions; 81 per cent.

1954: 43-11 with 6 abstentions; 79 per cent.

1955: 42-12 with 6 abstentions; 77 per cent.

1956: 47-24 with 8 abstentions; 66 per cent.

1957: 47-27 with 7 abstentions; 63 per cent.

1958: 44-28 with 9 abstentions; 61 per cent.

1959: 44-29 with 9 abstentions; 60 per cent.

Red China

but apparently changed his mind.

A Soviet spokesman said Khrushchev would delay his arrival at the United Nations until mid-afternoon. If the subject of disarmament has not come up by then, he plans to go to the Russian estate at Glen Cove, L.I., for the weekend.

The Assembly held morning and afternoon sessions—an unusual Saturday schedule—in an effort to reach a vote on the Red China question.

It was delayed yesterday when Nigeria became the 99th member of the General Assembly. A parade of delegates—36 asked for the right to speak—went to the rostrum to welcome the new member.

With Khrushchev throwing the weight of his personal prestige behind Peiping, the ballot will take on added significance this year and show whether the Soviet leader has won any converts in his stormy stay at the U.N. He has been particularly active in seeking the support of the 16 new African members that have joined the world body in the last three weeks.

JURY CHOSEN FOR TRIAL OF CARPENTER CHIEF

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 8 (UPI) A jury of seven men and five women was selected late yesterday in the bribery trial of International Carpenter's Union President Maurice Hutcheson and two top union officers.

Selection of the 11-member panel climaxed the first week of the trial of Hutcheson, union vice president O. William Blaier, and Secretary-Treasurer Frank M. Chapman. The state and defense argued for five days before impaneling the jury. Special Judge M. Walter Bell had warned that a jury would be completed yesterday "no matter how long it takes." The session ran overtime before the final juror was agreed on.

The three union officials are charged with conspiracy to bribe a former state highway official in connection with an alleged deal to make $81,400 in quick profits from purchase and sale of land in Indiana, Lake and Wayne counties.

REBEL USW LEADER CHARGES HEAVY M'DONALD SPENDING

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Oct. 8 (AP)—Donald C. Rarick, leader of a rebel group within the United Steelworkers, charged yesterday that USW president David J. McDonald has used funds for his own entertainment.

In petitioning United States district court for permission to examine union financial records, Rarick charged that McDonald had a good time at union expense before, during and after the 116-day nation-wide steel strike of 1959-60.

Rarick charged that McDonald's 1959 expenses were much greater than the $14,667 reported. McDonald ran up entertainment bills in New York and other cities in 1959, all which were paid by the international union treasury, Rarick said.

JOHN BARRYMORE JR. HELD IN JAIL AFTER ROME BRAWL

ROME, Oct. 8 (UPI) — Actor John Barrymore Jr. was in jail today on four charges arising from an attempt to rescue his fiancee's two brothers from the police. Barrymore's fiancee, Gaby Palazzolo, her father and brothers also were arrested.

Police said Barrymore and the girls' brothers were involved in a brawl last night with two other men. A police patrol arrested everyone involved except Barrymore, who fled.

A few hours later, Barrymore, the girl and her father went to the district police headquarters and asked that the girl's brothers be released. Police refused and the ensuing argument turned into a fist-fight.

140 Safe in Crash Landing.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Oct. 8 (AP)—An Air France Boeing 707 carrying 130 passengers and a crew of 10 crashed on landing yesterday at Pointe-a-Pitre airport on the Caribbean island of Guadeloupe. No one was injured. Pierre Lascombe, general manager for Air France here, said both right jet engines were torn off when the landing gear collapsed.

Low temperatures and areas of precipitation expected tonight.

Little change in temperature is expected in the St. Louis area tomorrow, with mild weather continuing at least through Monday, the Weather Bureau said. Intermittent rain was forecast here through tonight.

Showers developed yesterday over extreme southern Missouri and extreme southern Illinois and extended this morning to south central Missouri eastward into adjacent areas in Illinois.

Scattered showers and thundershowers also fell in the 24 hours ended early today in the Gulf coast area northward to the lower Ohio valley, Arkansas and eastward into Tennessee and northern Alabama and Mississippi.

Rain also fell in the northwestern quarter of the nation. Mostly fair weather prevailed today in the Plains states, upper Mississippi valley, Great Lakes area, New England and the middle Atlantic states. Showers were forecast by tomorrow in parts of the southeast and west from the Rockies to the Pacific coast with snow in higher mountain areas.

Temperatures in Missouri and Illinois yesterday were lower than in the preceding 24 hours as a result of the inflow of cooler air from the northeast. Readings in the two-state area this morning ranged generally from the low 40s to near 60.

Heating degree days in the St. Louis area yesterday, 5; the month, 16; the season, 23.

BIDS & PROPOSALS WTD. 286

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS
Sealed proposals will be received at the Office of the Board of Education, 6701 Delmar Blvd., University City, Missouri until 2 p.m. (Central D.S.T.) October 27, 1960 for the Additions and Alterations to the Senior High School located at Jackson Avenue and Balson Avenue, for the School District of University City, Mo.

Separate bids will be received on each of the following classifications of work, General Work; Heating, Ventilating and Air Conditioning; Plumbing Work; Electric Work; and Service Elevator.

Plans and specifications are on file and may be procured at the office of Rathmann, Koelle & Carroll, Architects, 316 North Eighth Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Not less than the prevailing hourly rate of wages for work of a similar character in the locality in which the work is performed shall be paid to all workmen employed on this project, all as more fully set out in the detailed plans and specifications.

By virtue of Statutory Authority, a preference will be given to Missouri labor and to materials, supplies, provisions and all other articles produced, manufactured, made or grown within the State of Missouri.

The Owner reserves the right to waive informalities and to reject any or all bids.

Alfred J. Fleischer, President
BOARD OF EDUCATION,
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF

Patterns of Progress

Progress in plans for speeding of traffic flow takes concrete form in this aerial photograph looking to the west. In center, West Florissant avenue overpass crosses final link of Mark Twain Expressway now under construction. The overpass lane nearest to the camera was opened for traffic yesterday. At lower left new overpass from O'Fallon park crosses the Mark Twain construction and enters North Broadway at bottom of photo. Street leading from Broadway to Florissant is Taylor avenue. Lanes of concrete already poured (upper right) head toward eventual junction with the present ending of the Mark Twain on Bircher boulevard.

Thundering Titan

Intercontinental-range Titan missile, spurting forked tongue of flame from its two first-stage engines, thundering aloft from Cape Canaveral, Fla., yesterday on the start of a 5000-mile test flight. The rocket was launched on a hi[illegible] to subject the nose cone to more severe re-entry conditions. The Air Force announced the shot was successful and that a data capsule ejected from the cone was recovered.

2 Horsepower Rescue Team

'Villain' Out of Character

Norsemen in America

By Ramon Coffman

ACCORDING TO THE old sagas, Leif Ericson and his companions found "self-sown" grain, as well as grapes, in Vinland. The grain must have been Indian corn, and very likely was planted by Indians who had moved away from the area.

After spending the winter in Vinland, the Norse party sailed back to Greenland. Excitement was aroused among the other Greenland residents when the voyagers reported where they had been and what they had seen.

Efforts were made in later years to locate and settle Vinland. Some Norsemen settled there for a time, but the colony failed to last.

The Norse stories, or sagas, were told from father to son, from son to grandson. They differ in some details, but historians in general accept the Norse discovery of North America about 960 years ago.

The exact location of Vinland remains to be settled. Arguments have been made in favor of southern Nova Scotia, Maine, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

An outside reference to Vinland has been found in historical notes written down by a German scholar about 75 years after Leif made his great voyage. This scholar lived in the German city of Bremen, and was known as "Adam of Bremen."

Adam of Bremen said that he had had talks with the king of Denmark. He related that the king had told him about Norse settlements on Iceland and Greenland, and that Norse seamen had reached Vinland.
